What a Brain Times Change, Men Change This Week's News The Man Under Forty

—By Arthur Brisbane—

PROF. C. JUDSON HERRICK, of the University of Chicago, tells the American Association for the Advancement of Science this:

Man's brain is so complicated that all figures connected with astronomy, all calculations about the number of miles that light can travel in 100,000,000 light years, going at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, seem childish.

The stupendous figure ONE BILLION is indicated by writing the figure one, followed by nine zeros.

The number of individual "cerebral telephone lines," connecting the brain cells one with another, can be represented by writing the figure one, followed by FIFTEEN MILLION ZEROS.

Each of those fifteen million zeros, as it is added, multiplies the preceding figure by 10. The human brain cannot imagine even one million. The figure quoted, a figure one, followed by fifteen million zeros, if printed, would fill 30 books of average size, each book of 350 pages.

Every one of the ten to fourteen billion nerve cells in the human brain is interconnected, and every one of them is an electric battery.

Fortunately, this earth is expected to last at least one million million years more. Men will have time to develop that unbelievably complicated brain machine.

Men's mental attitudes change rapidly with changing conditions. Recently, Germany and Austria were begging the League of Nations to let them abolish tariff frontiers and build up some kind of strong German nation. Now Dollfuss, who is "Austria's Hitler," but no Nazi, arrests Hitler's representatives. And Hitler is preparing, Heaven knows what, for vengeance on Dollfuss.

The late Prof. Shaler, who taught geology at Harvard, wrote a book on the mob, telling the difference between individuals acting separately and in mob formation. He declared that a group of clergymen, under the right mob influence, might be started on a lynching expedition.

News comes from Germany that the most rampant, radical, communistic "Red" groups of workers in Germany are now enthusiastic Nazis, eager to put on their brown shirts, and march under Hitler's orders. Men believe that they think FOR THEMSELVES, but, like wolves, what they want is a leader of the pack.

Preparing a broadcast on the news of the past week, this writer asked William Randolph Hearst, whose newspapers supply news to 5,000,000 American families every Sunday, what he considered the most important news of last week.

His reply, telegraphed from his ranch at San Simeon, Cal., reads:

"The most important news of the week is that nothing has happened, or will happen, or can happen at the world's economic conference which would be of any benefit to America. Instead of our President going abroad, our delegates would better come home.

"The next most important news is that Charles E. Mitchell has been pronounced by a jury not guilty of income tax evasion. Juries will not convict people for evading the income tax law, or for evading the prohibition law. Both laws are unjust, unwise, un-American and consequently unpopular. They should be repealed.

"William Randolph Hearst."

In GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE, for this month, Henry Ford says he looks to "men of forty" to rescue the nation from its difficulties. "Experience wins finally," says Mr. Ford, and adds that he has never known men under 40 who were "worth much."

There are exceptions. For instance, Alexander the Great was dead at the age of 33. Perhaps he was not "worth much." At 25 Keats had closed his book and lay in the cemetery at Rome, beneath a stone on which was written:

"Here lies one whose name was writ in water."

Shelley died, drowned, at 30, and that colossus of all time, William Shakespeare, at 38, had written "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Romeo and Juliet," historical plays and innumerable other works.

Nobody knows better than Henry Ford how much had been done by his intimate friend, Thomas A. Edison, before the age of 40, and most important to the United States, at 30, Henry Ford had built his first engine, and before 40 had begun the work of putting the 123,000,000 people on wheels, and conquering the law of gravitation.

However, Francis Bacon, "wisest of mankind," agrees in part with Mr. Ford.

"Young men are fitter to invent than to judge, fitter for execution than for counsel, and fit-

EAST BOSTON BOY FOUND NEAR WILMINGTON

Reading, June 26 (AP)—Tired, hungry and thirsty and scratched by briars, three-year-old Edmund Santamaria of East Boston, who disappeared yesterday, was found by State police in a densely wooded region between North Reading and Wilmington. The child was found after large searching parties had combed the countryside and a small pool had been drained by the fire department. (Details on Page 11.)

SOCONY-VACUUM ADVANCES "GAS" PRICES

New York, June 26—Socony-Vacuum Corp. will advance price of gasoline ½ cent a gallon throughout its territory, effective Tuesday.

MAINE DRYS HOLD UP BEER TRANSPORTATION

Augusta, Me., June 26 (INS)—Maine's "drys" today apparently had blocked the Weatherbee transportation and beer bill, passed by the Legislature, from becoming effective June 30, as a result of filing with the state 18,167 signatures on petition for a referendum on the measure. This does not stop Maine from having its legalized beer by June 30, for no referendum has been invoked against the licensing bill.

DRY AGENTS LOSE POSITIONS BY REPEAL

Fifteen or more dry agents expect to be jobless after July 1 under the recent 40 per cent cut ordered by Washington. John W. Morrill of Hartford, prohibition agent for the New England district, is slated to hand them their walking papers prior to that date, he admitted today.

Judge Warns Mrs. Curtin Not to Make Faces

His response to her kiss was a punch on the face which left her scarred, it was admitted today in Dedham probate court by John Curtis Curtin, scion of a wealthy Brookline family, suing Mrs. Margaret Murphy Curtin for divorce and being sued.

Wealthy Brookline, Newton and Wellesley society women who jammed the courtroom, heard Mrs. Curtain, a former artist's model, warned by Judge Joseph McCoole, a short time after the hearing opened, that if she made any more faces at her husband she would be barred during his testimony.

TELLS OF SUICIDE PLOT

Curtin is the son of the late State Senator John S. Curtin. His elopement in 1927 with the model was interrupted by Coast Guard officials who arrested him in Providence as a deserter, interrupted to say that his wife's actions in court did not annoy him.

"I'm used to her faces," Curtin said.

Curtin, whose divorce suit carries the same charges as those made by his wife—cruel and abusive treatment—recited a long list of alleged abuses at her hands.

These included two suicide attempts on her part, in one of which she nearly asphyxiated him, the hurling of a vase, a flat iron, a lamp and a telephone, all of which struck him.

In one suicide attempt, he said, he was forced to take away from her a revolver she had found in a closet where he had hidden it. Before giving up the revolver, he said she pointed it at him.

HE CALLS POLICE

For his sister's wedding, in June, 1930, Curtin testified, his mother had purchased clothing for his wife so they could attend together and this caused her to go into a rage that necessitated an attemp on his part to summon the Brookline police.

He said that when he called the police his wife seized the telephone and struck him with it, and then hurled a desk lamp that struck him on the head. Then she ran into the street and, when he ran after her and carried her bodily into the house she struck him on the eye, he claimed, causing it to remain discolored for several days.

In September, 1932, he took the revolver away from her, he testified.

Later, when he discussed plans to separate, he cranswer was an attempt to end her life by gas, he said. He said she awoke one morning at 2 a. m. and found all gas jets in the house open.

He also testified that after their separation he had gone to a hotel with her, but declared he was under the influence of liquor when he did that. He said it was she who called at his home and prevailed upon him to accompany her to the hotel after his suit for divorce had been filed.

BOMBER OF ST. PETER'S ARRESTED

Vatican Under Heavy Guard; Prisoner Is From Spain

Vatican City, June 26 (AP)—The bomb that exploded yesterday in the portico of St. Peter's was manufactured in Spain and brought here by Demetrio Solamon, who carried a Spanish passport, police declared today after they had arrested Solamon, charging him with planting the explosive.

The authorities asserted the explosion was the result of the present strained relations between the Vatican and Spain following the Pope's encyclical of June 3 and the latse sentential excommunications of members of the Spanish government.

The bomb caused a panic in a crowd of Holy Year pilgrims. Four persons were injured, but there was little property damage.

Solamon was born at Alexandria, Egypt, later became a Greek citizen and finally a Spaniard. He left Spain, police said, on Thursday night and came directly to Rome, arriving yesterday morning. He went to St. Peter's where he deposited the bomb, the authorities asserted, in a heavy cardboard package.

As a result of the explosion, persons entering the Vatican today for audiences with the Pope were closely scrutinized by attendants before being admitted into the Pontiff's presence.

Packages belonging to persons entering St. Peter's, which were left at the checking booth outside the main entrance in accordance with custom, were opened by attendants to see whether they contained explosives.

R. I. Man and Woman Indicted in Slaying

Providence, R. I., June 26 (INS)—An indictment charging murder was returned today by a grand jury against Milton L. Dexter, 26, of Central Falls, who allegedly beat to death with a hammer his friend, Foster R. Simmons, 30, formerly of Worcester, Mass., and concealed the body for three months.

Mrs. Beatrice Lee, 45, companion of Dexter, was indicted as an accessory.

Society Maid's $3000 Gems Stolen in Chestnut Hill

A housekeeper with her fortune in jewels was revealed today when burglars broke into the Chestnut Hill home of her employer and robbed her of $3000 in precious stones.

The prowlers, according to the report of Mrs. Harry Lee, the housekeeper, broke into the house of Howard M. Bickford at 60 Wachusetts rd., Chestnut Hill, and, after ransacking the house, entered her room.

While she slept, they took from her jewel case two platinum brooches, one set with diamonds, the other with emeralds as well as a gold watch and $20 in cash.

The jewelry, Mrs. Lee explained, had been given to her by her husband, the deceased, a former Wall Street broker. It represented, she said, almost all her wealth.

Mrs. Lee was not awakened by the burglars and discovered her loss only this morning. A quick search of the house before she called police disclosed that the thieves had gained entry by a pantry window. Apparently they expected to be unmolested, as the Bickfords are out of the city on a vacation.

According to Mrs. Lee, nothing of value was taken from Mrs. Bickford's room, where the burglars overlooked a purse. Bickford is a lumber dealer.

NAVY ROARS INTO PORT TO AID WETS

U. S. Destroyer Beats Weather to Help President's Son

James Roosevelt, son of the President, won a thrilling sea race against time and fog to reach the prohibition repeal convention which opened at noon at the State House.

Roosevelt was one of the 45 delegates pledged to formally place Massachusetts in the ranks of the states which want prohibition wiped off the books.

ARRIVES IN TIME

With two friends, he left Southwest Harbor, Me., aboard the destroyer Bernadou last night. Fog slowed up the destroyer and for a time it appeared that Roosevelt would arrive here too late.

A Navy speed boat was sent out to meet the Bernadou and bring young Roosevelt ashore, but the destroyer made it, docking at Commonwealth pier at five minutes before noon.

A car waiting at the pier whisked Roosevelt at high speed to the State House just as the convention was called to order.

"I thought I would never make it," Roosevelt said as he dashed through the State House corridor to reach the Gardner Auditorium where the convention was held just as Gov. Ely was about to enter. He walked in with the governor amid the applause of the delegates and the gallery.

DRESSED IN BLACK

He was the only delegate garbed in keeping with the obsequies of the "noble experiment." He was dressed entirely in black.

James Roosevelt has been one of the most active campaigners in favor of repeal, and he was most anxious to be present at the convention. He had expected to dock at 9 a. m., but the fog shut down off the Massachusetts coast and the destroyer was slowed down. Later, as the fog lifted, she proceeded under forced draught.

DAVIS HERE TODAY

Roosevelt was accompanied by John Cutter and Amyas Ames.

Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador-at-large, whom President Roosevelt summoned from Geneva to report on the arms conference, left New York by train this morning and will join James Roosevelt late today and go back to the Amberjack aboard the Bernadou tonight.

Later this week Davis will go to Boston to attend the marriage there Satrday of his son, Parchall, and Miss Evelyn Ames.

GRILLED ABOUT MURDER

J. WALLACE IN KILLING QUIZ

James Wallace, younger brother of Stephen J. Wallace and the late Frankie Wallace, Gustin gang leaders, surrendered to police today for questioning in connection with the slaying of Thomas "Red" Curran, custodian of Gustin headquarters in South Boston.

Asked where he had been since the Curran murder, he laconically remarked:

"Oh, I've been taking a little vacation."

The bullet-riddled body of Curran, who had turned state's evidence against Anthony Demorowski and Thomas "Fagot" Dineen, Gustin gangsters now serving long terms in State Prison, was found in a water-filled Quincy quarry.

Curran testified that Demorowski, Dineen, Stevie Wallace and his chauffeur and bodyguard, Frank Sullivan, had brutally beaten Police Detective Daniel McDonald in Gustin headquarers in South Boston after drugging him.

The elder Wallace and Sullivan are still sought by police and are believed to be in hiding in New York.

Young Wallace's surrender to Police Inspectors John A. Dorsey, Thomas Keating, Benjamin Goodman and William Gouldston took place at Massachusetts ave. and Esseex st. through an arrangement declared by police to have been made by Wallace's relatives.

He was taken to police headquarters where his attorney, Michael C. Kellher, arrived a short time later, and waited with the prisoner until he was turned over to Quincy police.

Wallace gave his age as 22 and said he lives in Sudan st., Dorchester.

STOCKS HIGHER, GRAINS SOAR

New York, June 26 (AP)—Cotton and the "farm bill" stocks boomed in the New York markets today as Chicago grain prices soared spectacularly.

In very heavy trading, cotton futures climbed $2.50 to $3 a bale, reaching the highest level in about two years. Buying poured into the market from numerous sources and all positions sold above 10 cents a pound. Profit-taking brough: occasional dips.

Wall St. traders hastened to buy the farm implement and mail order stocks, but the rest of the market, though firm, was rather narrow and dull. J. I. Case jumped $7, then lost part of its rise.

Limited offerings of cotton were easily absorbed by the aggressive demand which was stimulated by acreage reduction prospects, dry weather in parts of the belt and early firmness of sterling. The pound, after advancing more than a cent, later reacted.

Taylor Estate Wins $10,110 Tax Fight

The James G. Taylor estate today won its battle against a federal tax assessment of Internal Revenue Collector Thomas W. White, when Judge George H. Bingham in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that $10,110 had been paid to the late Mr. Taylor by the Taylor-Logan Co., Holyoke papermakers, for services to the firm and not as a gift. The judgment of te lower court was reversed.

POLICE FATE HANGING ON CRIME JURY FINDINGS

Ely Waits as Report is Drawn in a Secret Session of Probers

Deepest secrecy today attended the drafting of a report by the grand jury on its crime probe, with a committee of five to draft the report being appointed by the foreman, Leonard J. Banks of Dorchester, and the identity of these five being hidden.

The report is expected to be made public Wednesday, with Governor Ely awaiting its appearance and prepared to take drastic action against members of the police department if the report warrants.

Before the drafting committee was appointed, it was reported at the courthouse that the grand jury intended reopening the investigation to call another police official and interrogate him on the more than 2500 felonies committed in Boston the first five months of this year, but this was not done.

MEMBERS OF THE JURY

In addition to Foreman Banks, a mechanic, the grand jury is made up of the following men:

Edward M. Bresnahan, janitor, 120 Brainerd rd.; Carl J. Christensen, cabinet maker, 338 Cornell st.; Frank Docks, cigarmaker, 21 Third st., Chelsea; Mathias B. Donelan, meat cutter, 141 Marcella st.; Alvin O. Eddy, salesman, 81 Parquhar st.; William F. Galuzis, agent, 86 Kittredge st.; William Thomas Goss, coremaker; 956 Savin Hill ave.; Chester S. LIBBY HOLMAN'S RICH BABY KEPT SAFE UNDER GUNS

HUGE DOG IS ON PATROL OVER BIG ESTATE

Special Cow Gives the Milk, and Reynolds' Heir Is Doing Well

Watch Hill, R. I., June 26 (INS)—Six armed sentinels, the eight-man police force of Westerly and a Great Dane as big as a pony, were guarding Libby Holman's millionaire baby today in this summer citadel of the elite.

The one-time Broadway torch singer who married into the Reynolds tobacco fortune only to have her 29-year-old husband slain in a mysterious shooting, is taking no chances with kidnapers.

Zachary Smith Reynolds, victim of the tragic gunplay, left an estimated estate of $20,000,000.

When the courts finally decide what is what, Libby's son, Smith Reynolds II, the boy born in a Philadelphia hospital Jan. 10, will have a sizeable slice of that wealth.

STATE GETS THRILL

Tiny Rhode Island hasn't witnessed such a fuss over one youngster since 30 years ago, when, at nearby Newport, John Nicholas Brown, known as "the world's richest baby," was cloistered by barbed wire and Pinkerton men.

Until Libby secretly moved into Watch Hill a fortnight ago, the story of "the world's richest baby" had been almost forgotten.

Each morning the train from Boston brings a special consignment of milk for Smith Reynolds, II, who has added quite a few pounds since he emerged from his Philadelphia incubator.

Libby's own car waits at the Westerly station, six miles from here, to dash home with Baby Reynolds' breakfast.

ARMIES UNOBSERVED

With her chum, Mrs. Louisa du-Pont Carpenter Jenney, one of the Wilmington duPonts, the former Broadway warbler slipped unobtrusively into Watch Hill.

Her villa was rented from Carl Sturhann, wealthy Hartford, Ct., insurance man. It is a spacious 25-room, cream and white mansion, perched at the edge of the Atlantic.

Shortly after Libby arrived a $5000 speedboat was delivered at the yacht club. With Libby at the controls, it has been seen frequently cleaving the blue waters of the harbor.

Lights glow until the early morning hours at Rim Rock, long after Libby's neighbors-at-least, Mrs. Richard Mellon, brother of the former Secretary of the Treasury—have sought their beds.

Bicycling is one of Libby's pastimes.

Young Sharkey Puts on Father's Chip; Dares Kidnapers to Touch His Sisters

DEBTS MUST BE REVISED, SAYS COUZENS

U. S. Delegation United on Roosevelt Plan at the London Parley

By GEORGE R. HOLMES, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Geological Museum, London, June 26 (INS)—Solid backing of President Roosevelt's domestic recovery program by the American delegation to the World Economic Conference was revealed by Senator James Couzens of Michigan this afternoon.

Addressing the monetary subcommission, the only Republican member of the delegation outlined his resolution regarding price levels, credit policies, external debt structures and synchronized governmental works, stressing the unanimity of opinion between the Washington administration and the delegation here.

MUST COMPOSE DEBTS.

"I do not believe," Couzens said, "that prices can be raised by monetary means alone.

"There is necessity for a readjustment in the debt structure. I agree with much that Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain has said about restoring prices, but I do not believe prices could or should be raised sufficiently to bring about that equilibrium with the structure of indebtedness now existing.

"Prices must be raised, but the burden of debt must be lightened.

"We must attack both problems simultaneously to achieve success. This is in no sense to be construed as an invitation to debtors to scale down their obligations; certainly it is not an invitation to default.

"It emphasizes the necessity of organizing creditors throughout the world an of establishing some permanent body to act between creditors and debtors so adjustments will be possible with a minimum of delay and injustice. "My government has exhibited courageous willingness to face the facts; it has set up agencies in our country to bring about composition of debts between debtors and creditors."

ROOSEVELT PROPOSALS

Couzens referred to the measures taken by the Roosevelt administration to promote increased purchasing power, which he deemed as of the highest importance.

"Enterprise," he said, "will not recover courage until it receives a lead from the government. We believe we are in for a period during which the government must take the lead.

"My government is proving its convictions by undertaking the largest program of public works in the world's history. This will energize production and consumption elsewhere."

Couzens recommended that other nations follow the example of the United States.

TRY TO TAKE THIS BABY

Libby Holman Reynolds, widow of the slain millionaire Smith Reynolds, is passing the summer in a spacious mansion at Watch Hill, R. I., where her baby is being guarded day and night by two gun-indened detectives and eight Westerly (R. I.) policemen and a giant dog.

FATHER MUTES BRIDAL BELLS

Once again parental opposition has been arrayed against a romance in the Murphy family of Medford, it was revealed today.

The first instance came in the romance of Claire Annette Murphy with Sergt. John C. McGrath of the Medford police department. The couple were married secretly, and immediately after the wedding was revealed, McGrath was ousted from his position. His appeal from the finding of Mayor John H. Burke is now pending.

The latest instance is in the case of the present Mrs. McGrath's sister, Marion, who, little over a week ago, filed intentions to wed John Francis O'Connor, an Arlington attorney.

Everything seemed favorable until yesterday. Then it was learned that Atty. O'Connor had mailed the license back to Medford City Hall with a notation that it would not be used.

Early today McGrath confirmed the report that the romance was definitely spiked. Asked if the marriage ceremony would be performed he replied:

"It's all off."

"Who Fears Kidnapers?" Say Children of the Heavyweight Ring Champion

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

"Who's afraid of kidnapers? We ain't afraid, are we, Marylyn?"

Four-year-old Jackie Sharkey, chip off the old block off his fighting dad, drew up his little more than two feet of manliness, wrinkled his young face into a frowning grin and tossed a rubber ball rather at than to his two sisters, as he bellowed his childish fearlessness of those who threatened his father.

While a strapping Newton police officer watched over them within the brick-walled estate of the heavyweight boxing champion, Jackie, 7-year-old Marylyn and 8-year-old Dorothy romped over the spacious expanse of green, very much "at home" with their uniformed guard and totally oblivious to the reason for his presence with them.

DOESN'T FEAR ABDUCTORS

"You're afraid of kidnapers," tensed his elder sister, Marylyn.

Whereupon Jackie ran pel-mel over to her and started to wrestle.

"Say I ain't, say I ain't," he cried.

"Yes, you are," interjected Dorothy, and ran to the edge of the pool on the estate, Jackie dashing madly after her, temporarily releasing his hold of his other sister.

And so the three children of Jack Sharkey made sport of the threats which upset their father, training at Orangeburg, N. Y., and caused his hurried trip to Chestnut Hill Saturday.

But throughout it all, motor cycle-Officer Alfred W. Hammell was more than an interested spectator. A personal friend of the fighter, he has been stationed with the children to guard the Sharkey hearth while the champion completes his training for his bout with Primo Carnera on Thursday night.

CHILDREN ARE CALM

If "the squire of Chestnut Hill" has his calm, preliminary to his bout, ruffled when his manager, Johnny Buckley, received three letters demanding $5000 and threatening harm to members of his family, his three children certainly are not disturbed.

Rather they like to have the police officer with them. He makes a fine scheme for their childish play and an exciting newcomer to answer their whims.

When they weren't talking about the three-cornered kidnaping, they speculated on the outcome of their father's coming ring match.

HOPE DADDY WINS

The three youngsters squatted themselves on the grass and went into a serious discussion of the problem.

"I hope daddy wins," Dorothy spoke up.

ELY TO CLEAN UP.

Although a housecleaning in the police department is promised by Governor Ely, if the report of the grand jury on the crime probe justifies it, the Governor is powerless to act until that report, because of lack of formal complaint.

"The people of the city of Boston are entitled to the assurance that the guardians of their safety are above reproach," was Gov. Ely's comment.

"I will be influenced by the results of the probe and will take prompt action to clean up whatever corruption that is evident or suspected.

"The exercise of my authority over the police department, of course, depends entirely upon what the Suffolk County grand jury reports.

"I have not as yet received any formal complaint regarding the conduct of the Boston police department, but as soon as I learn anything from the grand jury report I will not hesitate a moment."

Action of Gov. Ely would place Police Commissioner Hultman in the same comparative position as was that of Gen. Alfred F. Foote, who finally resigned under fire as head of the state police.

Operation of speakeasies under resurrected club charters, a condition first exposed by the Boston Evening American, is expected to put a leading part in any probe of the police.

Searches for known gangsters that turn out "fruitless," liquor and vice conditions in various parts of the city and scores of transfers within the department that have been termed punishment, are other phases of the inquiry.

Just what evidence was given the jury by Capt. Jeremiah J. Sullivan, retired commander of the night club and theatrical district, was a matter of concern to department heads today.

'BIGAMY' BRIDE HOLDS TRUE

New Bedford, June 26—Bigamy or no bigamy, the former Grace Adams, of New Bedford, is "sticking with" her brand new bridegroom, Justin Edgerton, who was arrested last Friday in New York because her father preferred a charge against Edgerton to police.

Edgerton and Miss Adams, 22-year-old daughter of James A. Adams, factory manager here, were married at Elkton, Md., on June 17, and Adams charged to police that the marriage was bigamous which the body of Christ was said to have been wrapped on being taken down from the Cross.

The exposition will take place here from Sunday September 24 to October 15. Elaborate religious ceremonies, presided over by Cardinal Fossati of this city, will accompany the exposition. The "Holy Shroud" has been in possession of Italy's royal family for generations.

The Everett common council will adjourn and the city's public schools close for the summer months today. The city's 10,000 school children will attend a two-hour session this morning and then be dismissed.

300 Fliers Reach Chicago for Races

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—More than 300 airplane pilots, most of them speed or stunt demons, are in Chicago for the American air races and attempts at new aircraft records.

Officials of the races predicted as they surveyed the entries that a speed record surpassing the present mark of 294 miles an hour for land planes would be established during the four-day meet beginning Saturday.

Lawrence High's Graduation Tonight

Lawrence, June 26—Lawrence high school graduation exercises will take place this evening in the Warner Theater, when approximately 500 students will be given their diplomas. The school sessions at the school terminated last Friday.

Cummings Soon to Name Gold Hoarders for Prosecution

Washington, June 26 (AP)—Names of gold hoarders who refuse to return the metal in compliance with President Roosevelt's order soon will be published by the Department of Justice.

Atty.-Gen. Cummings said today prosecution would follow publication and the cause of delay was the department desired to have its evidence completed before pressing a case to court.

"Most emphatically there will be prosecution," Cummings told newspapermen, "Before we reach the prosecution stage, however, I intend to publish the names of those known to be holding gold in defiance of the President's order."

Cummins said the campaign to get hoarders to turn in gold had resulted in $23,000,000 being restored to the banks. Cummings said that on June 24, 185 persons holding $1,141,519 of gold had defied the government by refusing to return it. It is this list he plans to publish.

Harriman Put Under Quiz by Senatorial Probers

New York, June 26 (AP)—U. S. Atty. George Z. Medalie today told a Senate sub-committee that he followed "the suggestion of direction" of the Department of Justice in delaying prosecution of alleged violations of law in the conduct of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Co.

Medalie was the first witness at a hearing by the Senate sub-committee, which was directed by Senate resolution to investigate the reported failure on the part of the Department of Justice to promptly prosecute alleged violations of law by the Harriman National Bank.

While the hearing was in progress in another room in the Federal building, Federal Judge Bondy adjourned until Wednesday the fixing of a trial date for Joseph W. Harriman, former head of the bank who had been scheduled to go on trial today on an indictment charging him with causing false entries to be made in the books of the bank.

Senator Nesly asked whether the $25,000 bail recommended by Medalie for Harriman was not small.

Medalie replied that it was not as though Harriman "had a bag with $1,600,000 in it," but that he had expended and lost the money by buying stock and supporting his own loans.

Wage for Laborers Doubled in N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., June 26 (AP)—The wage scale for laborers on public works projects in New York State was doubled in the short time since the Wicks law has been in effect, Elmer F. Andrews, industrial commissioner, announced today.

AIMEE HUTTON SERIOUSLY ILL; HUSBAND FEARS NEW HOAX

DOCTOR ADMITS EVANGELIST UNDER KNIFE

Hutton in Los Angeles Waits for Definite Word From Her

Paris, June 26 (INS)—Aimee McPherson Hutton, Los Angeles evangelist, is in "very serious condition," her surgeon, Dr. Charles Bove, declared today.

The doctor told International News Service Aimee probably will have to remain at the American Hospital where he operated on her 11 days ago, for another six or eight weeks.

"It is impossible for her to receive visitors," he said. "I think she will be all right, but I cannot tell. Anything is possible."

Told of reports Mrs. Hutton previously had reserved a room in a French clinic for face-lifting treatment and other plastic surgery, Bove said:

NOT PLASTIC JOB

"I did no plastic surgeary. Maybe she failed to appear at the clinic because she was suddenly taken ill. I performed an emergency operation, but I cannot discuss the details of my patient's case. If she wants face-lifting treatment, she may go to the French clinic after leaving the American hospital."

Husband Summoned to Aimee's Bedside

Los Angeles, June 26 (INS)—Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist of Angelus Temple, ill in a Paris hospital, has summoned her husband, David Hutton, Jr., to her bedside at once, Miss Harriet Jordan, Temple manager, announced today.

Mrs. Hutton's condition is worse, according to a cablegram received by Miss Jordan.

Hutton, however, refused to depart for Paris until he had heard direct from his wife. He issued this statement:

"Unless I receive an answer to my cable sent two days ago to my wife, or a direct wire from her, I am not leaving on a trip to Europe as the cable requesting my presence may be the same sort of a hoax as the one concerning the alleged baby. Of course, if she needs me and calls direct on me, I will go. Naturally, no cables to outsiders would be necessary as I would be racing to her bedside by the fastest route, were I sure she needed me."

Just Before President's Yacht Off Maine -:- Began to Change Its Personnel

MRS. COSTELLO IN TEARS AT TRIAL DELAY

Defense Counsel Ready to Give High Bond for Her Release

On the wall of a cell in Salem jail hangs a calendar.

Every day a tired-looking woman, daily under increasing strain, marks a cross over one of its numbers. Then she counts the days to the date with a circle drawn around it.

It is July 5. Her face brightens. Then the faint smile vanishes, for once before she reached a date with a circle around it—and nothing happened.

That is the picture today of Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, arrested March 17 in connection with the poisoning of her husband, Fire Capt. William J. Costello.

WANTS TRIAL SPEEDED

She denies all guilt in his death and wants a trial to prove her innocence to all the world. At first, she smiled—even in jail. Trial and acquittal would come soon, she felt, and send her back to her children.

But with the trial date already once postponed, she seemed doomed to further delay today. Another postponement seemed almost certain as there is little prospect the Lynn murder case now being heard before Judge Frederick W. Fosdick can be disposed of in time to permit beginning the Costello case on July 5.

Frances E. Rafter, council for Mrs. Costello, said he would seek a conference with Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg to have him definitely decide on the date for the trial.

WOULD SUPPLY BAIL

But he, too, admitted that there was little prospect that it could be started then. He declared, however, that if a further delay is necessary, his client should be admitted to bail. No matter how high the amount is set, it will be supplied at once, he said.

"It is a terrible thing to keep this woman in jail all this time," Rafter said. "She has been confined now for more than three months and another postponement would break her heart."

According to Rafter, Mrs. Costello has all preparations made to go to court on the day set for the trial.

"The original date was June 26," Rafter said, "and when it was postponed until July 5, it lowered her spirits considerably. Another delay is likely to cause her to become sick."

NAZI JAILS 600 HITLER FOES

Berlin, June 26 (INS)—Adolf Hitler's government forces staged a nationwide cleanup of die-hard political opponents today, making more than 600 arrests, most of which were labelled "protective" in the interests of the national government.

Those seized included many deputies in both the Reichstag and provincial diets and many former government officials.

A total of 560 Social Democrat, Socialist and Communist functionaries were arrested in Magdeburg, Senftleben, Hamburg, Frankfort and Bremen.

In Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party, also stronghold of the Bavarian People's Party, an ally of the Catholic Center party, 40 peoplists were arrested, all members of either the Reichstag or the Bavarian Diet. They were charged with sabotage by conspiring with the Christian Socialists in Austria to crush the Nazi party in Austria.

Man Begs for Food, Has $240 in Wallet

Stratford, Ct., June 26 (AP)—Michael Massina, 61, of Buffalo, N. Y., was arrested here on a vagrancy charge today after residents complained he had begged for food at their homes. Police found $240 in his wallet.

Messina told police the money was part of his mother's estate. He said he was on his way to New Haven after attending his mother's funeral in Canada.

5 Boys Flee 'Prison' When Unguarded

Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., June 26 (INS)—Police and authorities at the state Juvenile Reformatory today sought five boys, ranging in age from 13 to 16 years, who escaped from detention pending disposition of charges against them. The five, Joseph McCoy, 11; Andrew Heine, 13; Anthony Alfreda, 15; Angelo De Carmine, 14, and Charles Howard, 13, fled when left unguarded.

Saltonstall Award to Donald Sullivan

Donald Mark Sullivan '33, of Boston, has been awarded the Endicott Peabody Saltonstall Prize at Harvard, it was announced yesterday at University Hall. Sullivan received the degree A.B. with honors at commencement last Thursday.

'PLOT' ON FORD SHUT 2 BANKS

Detroit, June 26 (AP—Herbert R. Wilkin, Detroit banker, today told the one-man grand jury investigating the closing of two national banks here, that "the sole reason for the closing of the banks, was, in my opinion, to 'get' Henry Ford."

Wilkin, former executive vice-president of the Guardian-Detroit Union Group, Inc., holding company for a number of banks, declared he was of the opinion that "Wall St. believed it had a chance, by tying up Ford's deposits in the banks, to so deplete his working capital that he must dealt with them or go broke." Ford, he said, had more than $65,000,000 on deposit in Detroit banks at that time.

Wilkin earlier startled the open grand jury session by declaring more than $4,000,000 had been cleared through the Detroit Clearing House between the time of the actual declaring of the state banking holiday, Feb. 14, and the following Thursday.

Withdrawals, he said, were made on behalf of Mrs. James Cousens, wife of the Michigan senator, and the Second National Bank of Houston, Tex.

Youth, Crushed in Elevator Well, Dies

Funeral arrangements will be completed today for James Poious, 16, of Richmond rd., Belmont, who died yesterday at Haymarket Relief Station from injures suffered Saturday when he was crushed between a freight elevator and the wall of the elevator shaft in a Hanover st., North End, building.

Auto Chain Pioneer Dies

Hartford, Ct., June 26 (INS)—David J. Post, 72, co-founder of a large chain of automobile accessory stores in New England, industrialist, was dead here today.

Fairbanks, Jr., in Fight for Life, Mother at Bedside

New York, June 26 (INS)—Critically ill with pneumonia, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is fighting for life in Doctors' Hospital today.

His divorced wife, Joan Crawford, is being kept informed of his condition by telephone to the Pacific coast, and his mother, Mrs. Jack Whiting, the former Beth Sully Fairbanks, is at his bedside. Miss Crawford first called the hospital Saturday night.

"His temperature is down a bit. He is holding his own," was the word at the Whiting home.

Fairbanks returned from Europe on the Bremen Friday and was admitted to the hospital Saturday. He had caught cold during the trip over and his condition grew much worse soon after he landed.

From London, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., telephoned and held himself in readiness to leave for New York.

Hollywood, June 26 (INS)—Reports that reconciliation might be effected between Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., screen actor, and Joan Crawford, glamorous film star, as a result of young Fairbanks' illness in a New York hospital, were spiked today by friends of the couple.

Miss Crawford recently divorced him.

The actress has telephoned the New York hospital in which her former husband is ill, but does not plan "to rush to his bedside," her close friends said.

Borah Undergoes Gland Operation

Senator Borah

Baltimore, June 26 (AP)—United States Senator William E. Borah of Idaho underwent an operation on the prostate gland in Johns-Hopkins Hospital here today.

The operation was performed by Dr. Hugh H. Young, noted urologist. He could not be reached immediately for a report of the senator's condition, but the operation is not considered serious.

Senator Borah entered the hospital last week.

Russian Church War Flares Up in N. Y.

New York, June 26 (INS)—The ecclesiastical war over the movement to reconstruct the shattered hierarchy of the Russian orthodox church, the second largest Christian body in the world, has flared up in America. Blodor, the "Mad Monk," famous in the last years of the czar's regime, has opened a campaign against recognition of Sergius, present head of the church in Moscow.

Blodor has no official connection with the church in this country. Since coming here he has become a Baptist.

Sleepy Driver Hits Pole, All 4 Hurt

George Friedman, 41, of 12 Short st., Bronkline, fell asleep at the wheel of his car early today at the end of a night drive from New York. The car crashed into a pole in Newton Lower Falls. He suffered a fractured left arm, his wife, Victoria, sustained a fractured hand, and their two children, Sidney, 17, and Norman, 9, were cut and bruised.

Roxbury Youth Held as Auto Thief

William McKenzie, 22, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, will be arraigned in Lynn court, today, charged with attempted larceny from an auto. He was arrested at Lynn beach yesterday by Patrolman Leon Collier of the Metropolitan police, after he had allegedly broken into a parked car and was removing articles from it.

Malden Mother of 17 Killed in Lynn Auto Crash

Mrs. Lena Brienzi, 47, wife of James F. Brienzi, of 50 Cleveland st., Malden, and mother of 17 children, died at the Maplewood Hospital, Malden, early today of injuries suffered in an auto accident on Lynn st., near Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mrs. Brienzi was riding in a car driven by her husband. In the machine were Mildred Brienza, 13, and George Barrett, of 281 Lynn st., Malden. They had been to a hospital in Boston.

Brienzi told the police that the headlights of an auto coming in the opposite direction blinded him, causing him to lose control of the car and crash into a tree.

SPOTTER HELD IN RUM TRICK

Thomas "Little Tommy" Tucker, former liquor spotter for the Brockton police, was indicted by the Federal grand jury today for making a false oath at a recent liquor trial.

The indictment was one of five public and two secret indictments returned to Judge Lowell in the final report of the grand jury.

Tucker testified at a recent trial that he purchased a gallon of alcohol in the car of George B. Ryan of Brockton, after prearrangement with a prohibition agent, causing Ryan to be arrested.

Other indictments included Chester Ross of 32 Sumner st., Dorchester, for illegally operating a radio on April 10 and 25, and on May 18. His father, Harry C. Ross, was indicted for aiding an abetting. Its alleged young Ross was operating the radio and sending messages in code to rum ships at sea.

Clarence H. Worthylake of West Newton was indicted for attempting to pass two counterfeit $5 bills.

James A. McLean of Boston was indicted for selling three grains of opium.

Lief Nelson of Providence, Peter Holst and George Waters, both of Fall River, Philian Maltos of Newport and Edmond Ray of New Bedford were jointly indicted for smuggling into the United States contraband liquor on the rumboat Monalcia at Fairhaven on May 18.

Shorts for Women Lower Laundry Bill

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—Mrs. William Hamilton Mitchell, who wears shorts for tennis, says:

"Wearing shorts lowers the laundry bill. I don't know whether they are legal, but I like them."

Roosevelt Fogbound Far Off Maine, Waits for Moley

Lakemans Bay, Rogue Island, Me., June 26 (INS)—President Roosevelt today was fogbound in isolated northern Maine aboard the schooner Amberjack II in the same spot where 20 years ago he was forced to remain four days and nights because of similar weather conditions.

The President, however, was hopeful that mist rolling in from then sea would lift in time for him to move a little farther to the eastward by nightfall.

During his enforced idleness the skipper spun yarns of the sea with his younger sons, Franklin, Jr., and John, in the warm little cabin of the Amberjack. Later, if conditions improve, Mr. Roosevelt plans to do some fishing.

Sometime tomorrow, the President will take aboard his schooner Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large to Europe, for a discussion of the world disarmament conference, from which Davis has just returned.

As the President loafed his way north Sunday, one of his escorting destroyers, the Bernadou, headed southward for a fast run to Boston, where Davis will be taken aboard and hurried northward for the parley with his chief. The Bernadou is expected to overtake the President late Tuesday and Davis will go aboard the Amberjack II wherever contact is made, probably in the Bay of Fundy.

The presidential cruise lost two more of its members when the destroyer headed south, John Cutter and Amyas Ames, two of young Roosevelt's friends, leaving the Amberjack.

Indianapolis Leaves to Pick Up Roosevelt

Provincetown, June 26 — The cruiser Indianapolis, speed queen of the Navy, left her anchorage here in a thick fog this morning, bound for Eastport, Me., where she is scheduled to pick up President Roosevelt Friday and return him to the mouth of the Potomac.

Capt. J. M. Smeallie, commanding officer, denied he had been ordered to prepare for a dash to London.

Bandits Kill Cashier

Lacrosse, Ind., June 26 (INS)—Cashier W. E. Tennell, 42, was shot and killed by one of four gunmen who robbed the Lacrosse State Bank of $500 today.

Mother-in-Law or Idleness? That's His Fat and Fire

Washington, June 26 (INS)—The law applying the economy axe first of all to married workers in the government service has brought a hard problem to a government worker.

He and his wife are employed by the government, and have been notified one of them must resign by July 1.

The man and his mother-in-law are at odds, though he and his wife have contributed to her maintenance.

But the wife makes a larger salary than the husband. She wants to keep her job and let the husband resign.

If the husband quits, his wife plans to bring the mother-in-law to live with them. If he holds on to his slender salary, he perhaps can aid the mother-in-law in keeping her own home, but would have to sacrifice the larger earnings of his wife.

The government is waiting for an answer and the worker can't decide which it should be.

"Happy Days Please Everybody"—Farley

Detroit, June 26 (AP)—Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, told Michigan Democrats today he believed the people were "happy" as the results obtained by President Roosevelt.

Speaking at a luncheon sponsored by the Michigan Democratic State Committee, Farley said he was "sure all of those who were with us on election day are satisfied with what has been done. In fact, I have reason to believe all the people of America are happy at the results attained."

Farley asserted conditions have improved and confidence has returned, and "we have every reason to believe we are on the road to happier days, and will speedily attain the goal we seek."

REPEAL OF DRY LAW VOTED IN BAY STATE

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Massachusetts shouted her stand for repeal of the 18th Amendment with the voices of 24 women and 21 men assembled in Gardner Auditorium, State House, today at the constitutional convention which was called to ratify formally the 21st Amendment.

In the presence of 400 spectators, 45 delegates, all pledged to repeal, obeyed the mandate of the people who voted, better than 4 to 1, on June 13 that they were tired of the "noble experiment" of prohibition.

The ceremonies were brief. They lasted only 50 minutes. And at 12:55 p. m. the last resounding "Aye" was recorded in favor of the 21st Amendment, which nullifies the 18th Amendment.

GET TO BUSINESS

Charles Ely, of Westfield, brother of the governor and one of the 45 delegates, made short work of an attempt to complicate the work of the convention with unnecessary committees.

"We all know why we are here," he said. "All the delegates are pledged to vote for repeal. Let's get down to business."

The convention opened at 12:05 p. m. with Gov. Ely calling the meeting to order. The Rev. Samuel Elliot, pastor of the Arlington st. church, offered prayer. Secretary of State Cook read the roll of delegates. All were present.

In opening the convention, Gov. Ely said:

"I believe you to be the first convention of unanimous opinion ever assembled in the commonwealth. You are here to ratify an amendment repealing the Eighteenth Amendment. Your action is the result of years of agitation to rid the Constitution of a provision which never should have been in it. It should not take you long.

AID TO TEMPERANCE

"We are not unmindful, in the return of authority to the states for regulation of the liquor traffic, of the responsibility which rests upon those charged with the duty of government here, to so legislate and administer that the cause of temperance will be promoted that whatever good may have resulted from the prohibition laws of the last years may be consolidated and the interest of the people in sane government and orderly living spreads."

After Gov. Ely administered the oath to the delegates, they proceeded to the election of a chairman, B. Loring Young, of Weston receiving 31 votes against 12 for Mrs. Elizabeth Lovett, of Boston on the first ballot.

JIM ROOSEVELT HONORED

They were the only two candidates formally nominated. But James Roosevelt, son of the president, received one vote.

As all the delegates were pledged, there were no "nay" votes recorded. Daniel Gallagher, Boston attorney, varied the monotony of "ayes" by shouting out "Yeah" when his name was called.

When the vote was recorded Edgar Stanack, Boston delegate, addressed the delegates and said they should make a "suitable farewell" to Prohibition. No one has a chance to find out just what he meant as a motion to adjourn was unanimously voted and the convention ended.

Big Vote Sought in Two More States on Repeal

By the Associated Press

The old "get-out-the-vote" plea today wound up campaigning in the two states—California and West Virginia—which will decide tomorrow what they want done about the prohibition amendment.

For once the wets and drys claimed a common objective. In an argument over whether heavier votes would have changed the results of the 14 states that already have endorsed repeal, their leaders agreed that everybody should ballot in tomorrow's elections.

Because of numerous state issues, California officials predicted a heavy vote. In West Virginia, drys said wets would not profit because of stay-at-homes.

Both states, though, were looked upon as only a sort of warmup for what is considered a more crucial test July 18 when Alabama and Arkansas become the first Southern Commonwealths to act on the 21st amendment.

Today also was the day for Indiana's 329 delegates in convention to express formally their state's decision, recorded in the June 6 election. Two hundred and forty-five delegates were pledged to vote for repeal, 85 against.

Gives Them His Gun

Hot Springs, Ark., June 26 (AP)—One bandit was killed and another wounded today when W. P. Westmoreland of Houston, Tex., motoring with his wife, was halted by two armed men. He replied to a demand to "stick 'em up" with bullets.

DAVIS TO ATTEND SON'S WEDDING HERE

NORMAN H. DAVIS

America's ambassador-at-large, who goes to Maine today to confer with President Roosevelt on affairs in Europe, will be in Boston again Saturday to attend the wedding of his son, John Paschall Davis, and Miss Evelyn Ames, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Oakes Ames of North Easton and Boston. Davis is expected in Boston today to leave for Maine

MISS EVELYN AMES

Daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Oakes Ames, who is to become the bride of John Paschall Davis on Saturday next. Miss Ames' father is a professor at Harvard and supervisor of the Arnold Arboretum, the Botanical Museum and the Atkins institution in Cuba. Miss Ames' paternal grandfather, Oliver Ames, and her great-grandfather, Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, were former Massachusetts governors.

Jailed for Month in His Own Home

Providence, R. I., June 26 (INS)—One month to be spent in his own home, without visitors, was the unique sentence imposed today by Judge Capotosto, in Superior Court, upon Herman Kromson, 54 textile company buyer, who was cited for contempt of court in connection with a will contest case.

The sentence came after two physicians told the judge that the shock of Kromson's being sentenced to jail would cause the death of his semi-invalid wife, and his mentally ill sister.

Bavarian Leaders in "Protective Arrest"

Bamberg, Germany, June 26 (INS)—Prelate Leicht, leader of the Bavarian People's Party, allied to the Catholic Centrist Party, and several of his followers were taken into custody today in a "protective arrest."

Herr Schaeffer, a former finance minister, was reported also arrested.

SMOKED GLASS GANG GET $400

A brazen noon-day hold-up netted four "smoke glass" bandits $400 and an automobile in Chelsea today.

John G. Dunn, district manager for a store system, was their victim. He had stopped for a red light in Eastern ave., at Broadway, when the bandit car, containing four men, all between 25 and 30 years old, drew alongside. Its occupants all wore smoked glasses.

Two of them, one carrying a gun, left the car and entered his machine. One of the bandits seized the steering wheel, while his armed companion took the money —collections from the various stores in the district.

After pushing Dunn out of the car, the bandits drove off toward Revere. A teletype description was sent out.

Shocks Rattle Big Area in New York

White Plains, N. Y., June 26 (AP)—Slight earth shocks were felt today over a 30-mile area from here to New Haven, Ct.

At first they were believed to have been caused by an earthquake, but no record showed on the nearest seismograph at Fordham University, New York City.

Belief grew that the shocks were caused either by an explosion or the blowout of a high tension underground cable.

Short Services in German Churches

Berlin, June 26 (AP)—Protestant church services in Germany, will be short and snappy with martial music if Dr. Ludwig Mueller should become Reichs bishop and take as norm for divine service he himself conducted yesterday.

Preaching in the ancient Koenigsburg Schlosskirche, Mueller limited his sermon to 15 minutes, describing the Nazi revolution as God's hour for the German people.

Bay State Kiwanis Work for Children

Los Angeles, June 26 (AP)—Massachusetts Kiwanis, arriving here for the 17th annual convention of the Kiwanis International, today began sessions for the study of assistance to under-privileged children, unemployment aid, urban-rural relations, child welfare and civic betterment activities.

The Massachusetts delegation was in charge of Burton K. Harris of Sayleville, R. I., governor of the New England Kiwanis district.

Catholic Colleges for Business Bill

New York, June 26 (INS)—Full support for the national industrial recovery act was urged in a resolution adopted at the closing session of the National Catholic Alumni Federation, representing 47 Catholic colleges.

The convention also called for reforms based on the encyclical of Pope Pius XI in which

"Certain broad ethical principles were laid down which should govern social reconstruction."

Roraback to Face Utilities Probers

Washington, June 26 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission announced today that J. Henry Roraback, Connecticut Republican leader and president of the Connecticut Electric Service Co., would appear tomorrow in the utilities investigation.

Roraback's company is a member of the United Gas Improvement group. Also to testify is Walter E. Long, vice president of United Gas.

MOLEY TO LEAD FIGHT FOR 30 HOUR WEEK

BULLETIN

London, June 26 (INS)—The American liner Manhattan, bringing Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley to the World Economic Conference, will reach Plymouth tomorrow afternoon, according to an announcement today.

Washington, June 26 (US)—Instructions from President Roosevelt to introduce and fight for a 30-hour work week agreement among the leading nations of the world will be delivered to the American delegation at London tomorrow by Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, it is learned.

The proposal will affect only manufactred goods or processed materials, and will not apply to raw products.

PLAN TO AID JOBLESS

It would be in the nature of a multilateral pact among leading industrial nations to bar all manufactured imports failing to come under the 30-hour week category, not only from the signatory nations but from other countries as well.

The move was conceived by the administration as a major stroke at world unemployment, and an effort to make a comprehensive readjustment of world labor conditions to the revised needs of the machine age.

FRANCE MAY FIGHT

England, Germany, Italy, Canada, and the smaller industrial countires of Europe are expected to fall in line with the program. France, where unemployment is comparatively slight, and several of her satelite nations of Europe are expected to oppose it.

Other instructions which Moley will deliver to the American delegation will constitute a four-point summary of President Roosevelt's views on the conference as follows:

That the United States, once and for all, will reject any proposals for de facto currency stabilization until commodity prices in this country have returned to their 1926 level;

That it will reject all proposals for a horizontal tariff cut, and will only consider such bi-lateral tariff reduction agreements as are distinctly advantageous to this country as well as to the other nations involved;

That American economic reconstruction comes first, and that the United States will not participate in any tariff, currency, price-fixing or other scheme that might possibly impair the effectiveness of the economic recovery machinery.

Paris, June 26 (INS)—While an undercover move got under way in French circles to adjourn the Geneva Disarmament Conference by September, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour today discussed the disarmament issue with Arthur Henderson, chairman of the conference and chief of the disarmament section of the League of Nations.

The campaign for early adjournment was viewed as a French move to block Germany's defensive methods.

W. Newbury Church Has Anniversary

Newburyport, June 26. In honor of the 20th anniversary of the consecration of All Saints church in West Newbury, Rev. Glenn Tilly Morse preached an anniversary sermon yesterday at 11.

The church was built in memory of the parents of the Misses Emery and the consecration service took place in June 20 years ago. Rev. Mr. Morse founded the parish nearly 25 years ago and has been the sole clergyman in that period.

2 COOL ONES AT THE TRACK

Recognize Harpo without his wig and harp? Harpo Marx, when this picture was snapped at the bar of the Agua Caliente race track, had just sworn off the horses. And why not? Why roast in that Mexican sun when you can imbibe cold beer with seomeone as pretty as Susan Fleming? Harpo's weakness, you will remember, is blondes. And if the lady followers of King Horse at Rockingham were costumes as fetching as this, the park couldn't hold the customers. (International News Photos.)

Young Corbett and Wife Are Robbed

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—Young Corbett, former welterweight boxing champion, and his wife were abducted and robbed as they started to drive from Chicago to their home in Fresno, Calif. The fighter, who lost his title to Jimmy McLarnin on May 20, had spent a week here at the world's fair.

After taking $225 in cash from Corbett and two diamond rings valued at $500 from his wife, the gunmen abandoned the couple in their car, throwing away the keys.

Pennsylvania Rail Agent to Retire

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP)—Rodney MacDonough, New England passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will retire July 1, after nearly 50 years in the service, railroad officials said. His place in Boston will be taken by his assistant, E. R. Comer.

MacDonough is dean of the passenger staff in New England. Comer has been in Boston since 1928.

"Still Life" Art Pays for Divorce

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—An artist, who declined to give his name, traded a "still life" to Anne Burrows, an attorney, for legal services in a divorce case.

Other paintings went for dental work and board and room.

East Weymouth Man Dying From Blow

Augustus "Red" Williams, 26, of Commercial st., East Weymouth, is dying in Weymouth Hospital of a fractured skull following a brawl in a West st. cottage early today. Police plan to question several companions alleged to have quarreled with Williams.

Williams was first treated in the hospital on his way to work, he collapsed.

JOHNSON WARNS PROFITEERS

Washington, June 26 (INS)—Warring factions of labor and industry, would-be price-fixers and consumers' interests, were brought nearer agreement today after Brig.-Gen. Hugh S. Johnson laid down the law to all of them in a forceful statement to the nation of what he is doing under the national recovery act.

To embattled labor groups Johnson said:

"Labor will have a full and unrestricted right to present its case. The law specifically requires that every agreement contain a covenant to recognize collective bargaining and not to require men to join a company union as a condition of employment. This law will be executed as it is written."

To industry, he said:

"There is absolutely no reason or law for labor to demand a collective bargain in advance of submission of a code, and certainly it is a waste of time for any industry to rush to set up a company union."

On the threat of runaway prices, Johnson lashed out in old-time cavalryman style:

"This administration simply will not stand for that," and he added, significantly, "we do not expect to have any trouble about it."

Declaring that 12 million men are still out of work, and that "any wild-cat price lifting will hit them first," Johnson said:

"This is no time to get rich quick. Nobody is going to do a thing that will make him a peace profiteer."

DOG SAVES 200-LB. MAN IN MIGHTY SWIM

"Sonny," until recently the post mascot at Ft. Jay, N. Y., today is the hero of all dogs, for at Nahant he towed an exhausted 200-pound swimmer to safety in a remarkable feat of swimming. Roy Umanzzio of Harvard st., Medford, was almost drowned when his faint cry of "Help! Help" reached shore, where Leo Lermond, champion miler and Olympic star, was walking. "Go get him, Sonny!" Lermond shouted, and "Sonny" dived in. The dog weighs 50 pounds, but he dragged the 200-pound swimmer to land. (Boston American photo)

Army Officer's Dog Tows 200 Pound Man to Shore

Bathers at Nahant need have little fear of drowning this summer if the pet dog of the brother of Leo Lermond, champion miler and Olympio runner, keeps putting in appearances there.

The dog proved his mettle at the beach when he swam some 600 yards off shore to where a tired swimmer was floating on his back and then swam back to shore, towing the 200-pound man. The dog is Sonny, pet of Lieut. George Lermond, brother of the well known runner.

Leo and the dog were walking along the beach yesterday near Forty Steps when the runner saw a man floating on his back about 600 yards off shore and a quarter-mile down the beach. Man and dog broke into a run down the beach and when they arrived at the spot Lermond sent the dog into the water.

The animal breasted the waves and swam rapidly out to where the man was floating. The dog made an effort to grasp the man's bathing suit in his mouth. The man, realizing what the dog was doing grasped the animal's neck and was slowly towed to shore.

He was Roy Umanzzio, 27, of Harvard st., Medford, himself a qualified life saver. He admitted after coming ashore that he became tired while swimming and tiurned over on his back to rest.

$47 an Acre on N. E. Tobacco Crop

Washington, June 26 (AP)—New England tobacco farmers will receive a $47 first payment for each acre of crop reduction, as compared to $20 for Wisconsin growers and $24 for Pennsylvania and New York, under the plan announced today by the Agriculture Department.

The first payment will be made before September 1.

MAN JAILED IN PARTY KILLING

Ellsworth, Me., June 26—Following an all-night party that ended with death, Lynwood Mosely was arrested at his home today in connection with the shooting of Elwood Gilley, 21.

Gilley died of shotgun wounds near a summer farmhouse owned by Mosely on the old Calais rd. in Hancock County. Mrs. Delia Fullerton, 25, pretty Ellsworth tearoom owner, was found wounded about the face and neck by buckshot

Mosely was arrested by City Marshal John H. Stuart, who began a vigil at his Ellsworth home when the crime was discovered.

According to police, Mosely attended a party at the farmhouse with Gilley, Mrs. Fullerton and several others. Becoming involved in an argument, he is said to have fired a double-barrelled shotgun at Gilley.

Dying, Gilley clambered into a car registered to Mosely with Mrs. Fullerton. They had driven about half a mile when he slumped at the wheel—dead. The car crashed into a pole.

There, a neighbor, John McKay, found Mrs. Fullerton and the body. The woman was near collapse from loss of blood.

"I want a JOB"

YOU know me as a telephone.

Actually, I'm a man-of-all-work, and I want a job.

What can I do? Well—

I can do your errands at the stores for groceries, household supplies, and all kinds of little items.

I can guard your home against emergencies.

I can help protect the children.

I can be a good night watchman, for I never sleep.

I'm good company, even when I'm quiet, for you know I'm there when you want me. You won't be lonesome with me around.

I'll bring more visitors to you.

I'll work for ten cents a day, or even less, and I know I'm worth that.

Give me a month's trial, and see if I don't make good.

Come in or call our Business Office today to ask about service. You can call us without charge from any Public Telephone.

ECONOMY COST LIFE, $250,000

Lowell, June 26—Economy today was blamed for the disastrous spread of Lowell's $250,000 Sunday fire, which cost the life of one woman.

The city fire department, with a personnel of only 181 men—36 less than five years ago—was entirely inadequate to meet the situation, George O. Mansfield, chief state fire inspector, declared today during an investigation into the cause of the conflagration.

The Lowell firemen did a heroic job, Mansfield said, but they never really had a chance. There should have been at least 50 more of them, he said.

Fire Chief James C. Sullivan said as much when he inspected the ruins today. He pointed out that his department had 26 more men than its present strength five years ago. Municipal economies, however, have forced paring it down.

Meanwhile, Mansfield and Daniel P. Murphy, also of the state fire marshal's office, had reached no definite conclusion as to what started the blaze. They expected to question several more witnesses before concluding their probe. As yet they have cleared no one. Mansfield said, in referring to "two men who were grilled from 9 o'clock last night until an early hour this morning."

It's the Humidity, Not Heat That Stifles

It really isn't hot today, the weatherman insists. The uncomfortable feeling you suffer is caused, he explained, by the fact that the moisture in the air amounts to 83 per cent. The normal amount is 71 per cent. When the atmosphere has 100 per cent water, we have rain. In other words, "It isn't the heat, it's the humidity," an expression which history reveals has caused more feuds and broken friendships than the Civil War.

Lindy's Mothership Off for Greenland

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP)—The tramp Danish steamer Jelling, which will be mothership for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's aerial survey of a far-northern route to Europe, will leave here late tomorrow with airplanes and gasoline, bound for Greenland.

Triplets Get Extra Supply of Oxygen

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—A set of triplets, all boys, born Saturday to Mrs. Evelyn Marshall, were placed under a special tent at a Century of Progress in which they will receive air with 49 per cent more oxygen than normal.

FIVE PRIZES OF ONE DOLLAR EACH

MRS. W. G. DUFFY
158 Magnolia St., Dorchester.

SPANISH CALVES LIVER

4 slices of calves liver
2 tbsps. butter
1 onion, sliced
2 tbsps. chopped green pepper
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 cup chopped pimientos
1 cup chopped mushrooms
1 clove of garlic
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Melt the butter, add the onion and green pepper and saute until soft, about 10 minutes. Add the tomatoes, pimientos and mushrooms, garlic, salt and pepper. Cook slowly for one hour. Remove garlic. Season liver with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and fry in melted fat. Place on a hot platter and pour the hot sauce over all. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve at once.

BAR LE DUC JELLY

Take 1½ lbs. of large juicy currants and brush each with a pin to remove the seeds without mashing the fruit. Cook one pound of sugar with 1 cup of water until it will form a soft ball in cold water. Remove from fire and stir in the currants lightly and carefully as they will not be broken. Put back on the fire and boil for a few seconds, thus preserving the fresh, delicate flavor of the fruit, which is apt to be ruined by too much cooking. Put into small thin glasses that come for this purpose. Cover the next day as you would any jelly. This is one of the choice, delicately-flavored jellies as made in Bar le Duc, France, whose inhabitants are well versed in the art of fruit preservation.

MRS. GRACE DILL
Summer Ave., Reading, Mass.

CREAM "HEESE RINGS

2 tbsps. stuffed olives
2 tbsps. pecans
1 cream cheese
Dash of salt

Chop the olives and nuts fine. Add the cheese. Season with a dash of salt, pepper and cayenne. Add the mayonnaise and cream, mix thoroughly. Cut the loaf of bread into thin slices lengthwise. Trim off the crusts. Spread slices with the cream mixture. Roll up and place in waxed paper and tie. Keep in refrigerator for an hour or more before serving. Cut in thin slices.

MRS. H. WALDFOGEL.
118 Trowbridge St., Cambridge.

A FAVORITE CAKE

1½ cups sugar
½ cup water
6 eggs, beaten separately
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup cake flour
1 tsp. cream of tartar
1 tbsp. orange extract, or
Juice of 1 orange and grated rind

Boil the sugar and water together until they form a thread when dropped from the tip of a spoon. Pour this over the beaten egg whites, to which the salt has been added. Beat mixture until cool. Add the well beaten egg yolks. Sift flour once and measure. Add baking powder and sift three times. Fold very lightly into the egg mixture and add the extract. Pour into an ungreased tube pan and bake 50-60 minutes in a 325-350 F. oven. Invert pan when removing from oven and let cake cool in that position.

MRS. STELLA DUCAS
1085 Elm st., Manchester, N. H.

CHOCOLATE NUT POPCORN BALLS

2 cups sugar
½ cup white corn syrup
2-3 cup molasses
1 tbsp. butter
2-3 cup water
4 tbsps. chocolate syrup, or
2 oz. cooking chocolate
4 tbsp. chopped nuts

Dissolve the sugar, corn syrup and the water over a slow fire and boil until brittle. Remove from the fire and add the molasses, chocolate syrup or chocolate melted over hot water, and the butter. Stir well, add the nut meats and the fresh- or popped corn. Dip out by large spoonfuls and shape into balls, first dipping the hands in cold water or rubbing them lightly with butter.

9 SAFETY ISLES SEEM DOOMED

Abolition of nine of the Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, "safety" islands, that motorists be allowed to pass on either side of them and specification that there is need of better illumination are some of the recommendations contained in a report of the Governor's committee on street and highway safety today.

The report was made as the result of an investigation of accidents along the avenue.

"The area containing the islands has been the scene of 340 accidents in the past 18 months, including motor vehicles colliding with the islands, motor vehicles and motor vehicles and the striking of pedestrians," the report states.

"The study shows that the main purpose of the islands—protection or trolley car patrons—is not being fulfilled, as demonstrated by the fact that more pedestrians are still being injured since the erection of the islands than before their installation, this finding being based on similar periods before and after."

Trades Horse for Plane

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—Miss Jean Barnes, a cowgirl of Butte, Mont., took 68 days to ride a horse 1700 miles to the World's Fair. After her arrival she arranged to trade the horse for an airplane ride home.

WALSH UPHOLDS STAND ON VETS

Greenfield, June 26—In spite of a noisy outburst of jeers and hisses at his name, U. S. Senator David I. Walsh today maintained in a telegram that attacks on his stand in veteran legislation were unwarranted.

Massachusetts members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars staged the demonstration against the senior senator as a telegram was read in which Senator Walsh defended his recent votes on veteran measures.

The encampment then dispatched a telegram in which they said his telegram brought "no change in sentiment."

"Was surprised to read in the newspapers that veterans attending your convention disapproved my stand on veterans' legislation," the Walsh telegram stated.

"That you should be dissatisfied with me and not dissatisfied with those who are responsible for the cuts that I have denounced and still denounce is disheartening. Nevertheless, I intend to continue, as I have, to fight for disabled veterans and their dependents."

Liquor Charge Stands

Probable cause was found by Commissioner Jenny in Federal court today in the case of Harry Baer of 45 Linwood st., Malden, charged with transporting and possessing liquor on June 16.

N. Bedford Leaders Attend Pease Rites

Fairhaven, June 26 (AP)—Zephaniah W. Pease, editor of the New Bedford Mercury, who died Saturday after a long illness, was buried in Riverside Cemetery today, with Mayor Charles F. Ashley and other leading citizens as honorary pallbearers.

Flags at City Hall, the Board of Commerce building, and the Standard-Times building were flown at half staff.

At the CROSSROADS of LIFE!
Young, innocent, eager for life—girls that find themselves suddenly mature sitting at the crossroads waiting for—? Is it entirely a matter of chance that some achieve riches—others poverty? Do they really have a chance to decide for themselves as life rushes in to meet them? Take the case of Mary Martin—
POVERTY
RICHES
She didn't want a thing that she couldn't get honestly. But she was beautiful—too beautiful to pass unnoticed in a world of men.
It really wasn't her fault that she found herself on the broad highway that led to luxury and riches. But when she found the man she loved—she was ready to sacrifice it all!

Eileen Sycott Scolds Patricia for Arriving at the Bridge Party Before Dinner

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Unable to find employment, young and beautiful Patricia Warren capitalizes her card skill, at fifty cents an hour, by making a fourth at bridge parties given by the wealthy Mrs. Eileen Sycott. Julian Haverholt, noted bridge expert, is fascinated by Patricia and impressed by her game. He offers to make her his secretary and partner, suggesting that she live at his home. Aware of Haverholt's unsavory reputation, Patricia hesitates to accept the position. Haverholt escorts Patricia to the drab home she shares with her nagging step-mother and step-sisters. In the hallway, he suddenly embraces Pat. Indignant, she declines his business offer and rushes indoors. Mrs. Warren, Pat's step-mother, thinking of her own comfort, is furious at Pat's refusal. Bill McGee, a small-time politician and thug, invites Patricia to a New Year's Eve dance. She declines, but he retorts, "You'll go, kid, and like it." Patricia meets Clark Tracy, the famous polo player, at a bridge party given by Mrs. Sycott.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

QUITE NATURALLY then Patricia told him about the photograph. It never occurred to her to evade his question. She hardly realized that she had suddenly destroyed all her barriers of pride and reticence. She wanted passionately to tell him everything and anything he might want to know.

A door opened upon their absorption, Eileen Sycott summed up the situation in one long, infuriated look and swept down upon the divan. Patricia started. She hardly noticed the thin, smart girl who had entered with her hostess. She braced herself for insult. It came.

"I thought I told you eight-thirty," began Eileen Sycott in high indignation. She would have used the same tone in reproving a servant.

"I'm sorry if I came early," stammered Patricia.

"I should say you—" Mrs. Sycott broke off before her other guest's astonishment and offense. She resumed sulkily, "It's all right only I was sure you understood." She added ungraciously, "You seem to have introduced yourself to Mr. Tracy. I'd like to present Miss Martha March."

Patricia looked now at the other girl and experienced a pang of pure envy. Martha March was so smart, so completely poised, so unruffled by the unpleasant passage of arms that had not concerned her. She was perfect from the tips of her tidy, diamond buckled shoes to her tiny, diamond buckled shoes to her gown was straight from Paris. Her jewels were exactly right, the chiffon handkerchief tied carelessly about her wrist matched precisely the coral of her lips. All at once Patricia felt badly dressed, awkward, shy.

"How do you do," she murmured in response to the other girl's curt, cool acknowledgment.

"Miss March is Mr. Tracy's fiancee," Eileen Sycott said distinctly. "They announced their engagement last night."

The evening went on. Like one trapped in a nightmare, unable to waken or escape, Patricia followed the others to the bridge table, shuffled in her turn, bid in her turn, played in her turn. Like the others she concentrated on Kings and Queens and Aces or tried to do that. In a kind of dreadful detachment she heard Mrs. Sycott's endless complaints and grudging patronizing praise. Her whole being was absorbed in a precise and bitter recapitulation of the things she had said to a man who was a stranger to her. Her silly, silly words echoed and reechoed in her ears. What must Clark Tracy think of her? She had thrown herself at his head like a foolish high school girl. She had thought that he understood, this man who had announced his engagement last night. She had thought that he liked her, that he—oh, dear heaven, what hadn't she thought?

"Four spades," she said.

"Double," said Marthe March, a shade uncertainly.

"Redouble," said Patricia.

"Well, I hope you've got it in your hand," said dummy tartly, spreading a collection of cards that were mostly knaves and tens.

BREAKS DOWN

Patricia got through the evening. She did not break down until she reached home. Once there she wept as she had never wept before, hopelessly, desparingly. Clark Tracy was engaged, lost to her. And she loved the tall, fair man, had loved him from that moment when first their eyes had met. She cried until Teresa, sleeping beside her, woke and began to whimper in sympathy. After that she lay rigid and dry-eyed in the darkness. Toward morning she slept.

Next day she did not go job hunting. Listless and dispirited she helped with the cleaning and persuaded the children to dismantle the Christmas tree.

"But tomorrow is New Year's Day," argued Teresa valiantly. "Shouldn't we have a tree for New Year's Day, Pat?"

"Not this year, I think," said Patricia with a wan smile for the dilapidated object of her little sister's solicitude.

"Well—" hesitated Teresa. She eyed the tree and said suddenly, concilingly, "Could we have a bonfire then? In the back yard?"

"Yes, we can have a bonfire.

The three of them went to work with a will. They had packed away the last brightly colored ornament for next year when Mrs. Warren came in carrying a large department store box. A box in that household was always an event. The two children instantly began clamoring and questioning. Only Patricia was disinterested.

DRESS ARRIVES

"It was delivered upstairs by mistake," Lillian Warren announced, pleasantly important, "but it's addressed to you, Patricia. What in the world do you suppose it is?"

Seizing a pair of manicure scissors she prepared to satisfy her curiosity. Patricia watched, unprotesting, incurious. Her stepmother flipped aside the lid and a moment later was displayed an evening gown in black and scarlet. Even Patricia was startled now.

"But who could have sent it?" Lillian Warren was demanding, when she spied the card. She hurriedly read the message and then surrendered it to the rightful owner. The note was brief, to the point.

"In case you haven't anything to wear for the New Year's dance tonight, I'll come at ten o'clock. Bill."

Patricia let the card flutter to the floor. She looked at her stepmother.

"Now you'll simply have to go," Lillian Warren insisted vehemently. She expected rebellious objection. She got none.

"I'll go," said Patricia listlessly. "I'll even wear that dress."

"Don't you want to try it on? Maybe it will need some altering," suggested the other in a more gentle tone than usual. Something in the girl's eyes made her vaguely uncomfortable.

"I'll wear it as it is," Patricia said flatly. "I don't care how I look tonight."

Happy Landings

Sea Travelers Put Linen Right Up in Fashion's Front Ranks

Watching a huge liner being gently tugged into port is a great sight. Later, when she's docked, the scene is exciting, colorful, even chaotic. Smart women, their orchids, stiff little sailors and trim-tailored clothes are refreshing to the eye.

For happy landings, there's a definite clothes formula to follow—and it doesn't include pointed hats, trailing chiffons, or three-inch heels. (One slip on the gangplank, and one would be in the water—besides, it just isn't correct!) All the ladies up at the rail in the accompanying sketch are sublime examples of what smart women wear . . . the sort of cool spectator clothes that take you over the jumps from a luncheon in town, to the races and tennis matches in the country.

Linen suits are indispensible. At the farthest right, the black dress is relieved by an amusing white Elizabethan ruff of organdy. With it is worn an abbreviated cape with inverted pleat in back. There's a young air about the girl next in line. Her jacket is of natural linen, loose, full-sleeved and carefree. It's equally appropriate to wear over linens, sheers or prints, or with simple evening things after dark.

In the center is a rough string-colored linen duster, in the best 1900 manner. Notice the neat row of buttons, demure turned down collar and smartly incongruous gathered sleeves. Any woman could count on the simple two-piece suit at the extreme left, to wear in town or out. It's tie silk, spotted with an old-fashioned calico design. The jacket has exaggerated revers.

Among the spectators peering up at the arrivals, the artist sketched a few smart hats. First, one giving a new use for leather—a straight little red sailor. Then a panama, always good. Likewise, a white pique hat, worn with sheer gray tweed, and last, a tiny linen cap, with white grosgrain over the eyes in front...THE hat for the linen suit.

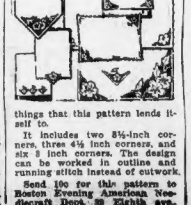
Rose Cutwork Linens

—By LAURA WHEELER—

PATTERN NO. 417

Cutwork has always been considered a handsome decoration for linens. It not only is an interesting form of embroidery to do, but a type that is always in style because of the beauty of the finished work. In this pattern the three sizes of motifs lend themselves to a variety of linens.

Here is an opportunity of making a lovely collection of linens for the bride to be or just for gifts, all from one pattern. Tea-cloths, scarfs, pillow cases, towels, baby pillows, handkerchief or lingerie cases are a few of the things that this pattern lends itself to.



It includes two 8½-inch corners, three 4½ inch corners, and six 3 inch corners. The design can be worked in outline and running stitch instead of cutwork.

Send 10c for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 30 Eighth ave, New York City.

DailyTrue Story

JACK CARROLL eased his loosely hung frame into the luxurious depths of the soft divan, passed his eyes in acute appraisement over the rest of the room, and sighed, wistfully. Jack was what one might call a "chirpy chap," on good terms with everyone—and himself. He had a worldly executive air With that—

His lips straightened meticulously, as he rose with scrupulous courtesy to greet the lithe Mrs. Clifton Vandeveer as she made her appearance through the Gothic doorway, and then her way regally across the thick Persian rug to the Venetian chair, drawn up near the low fireplace.

"A perfect woman in a perfect setting," he was thinking. "Strange that a husband—oh, tell —husbands were like that!" Countless ladies, of innumerable types, had commandeered the services of the Carroll Detective Agency, specialists in Shadowing, and he was becoming a bit bored.

The voices of Mrs. Vandeveer broke into his reverie. She spoke in guarded tones as if she were afraid the walls might listen and repeat her words.

"You understand, of course—that I may be wrong. I—I hope so. . . . But—well—marriage— to me, is a sacred thing . . . If—my suspicions are correct—I should want to know." The curves of her warm, lips broke into a forced smile. "Clifton is—well, that sort that feminine eyes greet with a yielding look!"

Carroll recalled the fact that raillery is often a defense against the tragic and there was no hint of laughter in his voice. "It will take some time, of course. You will want it to take enough time to make sure?"

TIME ELAPSED

Quite some time did elapse before his next call at the Vandeveer domicile. This time, as his hostess observed in fact, he made her way to her chair rather gropingly. There were thin, deep lines below her mouth and a gray mist in her eyes that strangely resembled tears. Her big, somber eyes were fixed upon those of her companion, fearfully. She had grown suddenly, inarticulate.

Something within Carroll expanded and there was a comforting cadence in his bass, as he talked, rapidly, with ever increasing warmth. He watched a strange softness come slowly into the tortured eyes of his companion, giving them a mellow lustre. It was the thing that lacked to make her beauty perfect. "Even a husband," mused Carroll, "might—now—" He felt the warm glow of that smile deep within his soul, as she crossed the room to the big armoire of drawers, and rapidly drew forth pen and ink and a check book. She no longer made her way gropingly, but she had the attitude of one who is profoundly conscious of her own patriness.

"I—I hardly know how to thank you. Your work has been extremely satisfactory. I—I'm afraid that I feel like a criminal —but it was worth all that, even. I shall never suspect him again—as long as I live!"

Carroll's eyes were pools of mysterious contentment as he made his way to his extremely humble, conveyance, parked discreetly, some distance from the Vandeveer mansion.

That baby with the wire wheels in the Allen window down town was merely waiting for a blithe driver like Jack Carroll to come in and sign on the dotted line and make its gleaming newness all his own! The old car rocked perilously as its traversed the distance between the Vandeveer mansion and that show window.

Just before entering the establishment that sponsored that window, Carroll reached his right hand into his right pocket and drew from its depth (which smelled strongly of tobacco) a check. How characteristic the handwriting on that yellow slip of paper! It was signed "Mrs. Clifton Vandever."

Carroll smiled, a cryptic smile.

With his left hand he reached into his left pocket and from its depths withdrew another check, of a slight deeper yellow . . . The amount for which the second check was drawn was larger than that of the first. Yes! More than slightly larger . . .

At one time in his somewhat colorful career, the hobby of the blithe chap had been the study of graphology. The chirography of his endorsement, scrawled rapidly across the back of the two checks, in all probability would have been analyzed by a handwriting expert as that of an individual of intensely sympathetic qualities. Too, the strokes of the capital letters revealed a tendency to desire and yearn for beautiful objects or surroundings. However, he was not interested in his own handwriting. He knew

ROLLER SKATERS BUSY PRACTICING

The roller skating revival which is sweeping the big cities of the United States has hit Boston with a bang as a result of the Boston Evening American's skating derby to be held in Boston Arena, Saturday, July 22.

If YOU haven't tried the sport as yet, why not get a pair of skates or go to a nearby skating rink and rent a pair. Ten to one you'll like roller skating if you give it a fair trial. And then, when you get good, fill out a coupon from the Boston Evening American and enter one or more events at the skating carnival.

Even if you are not speedy on skates you may win a prize in the costume parade which is to be one of the big features of the event. Prizes will be offered for the most attractive or unique costumes and also for the funniest in the roller procession. There is no age limit to this spectacular event. A child of six or a person of sixty may win.

Every mail brings more entries. The boys and girls, especially, are getting steamed up over the skating derby.

Two rinks have thrown open their doors afternoons, practically free for practice to those entered in the American's derby.

Through courtesy of George V. Brown, manager of the Arena, persons entered in the American's derby may skate from 2 to 5 p. m. today, tomorrow or Friday and also on Saturday morning from 9 to 12 o'clock for 10 cents, which includes free use of skates.

Alex MacLean, owner of Rollaway Rink, Revere, will permit those entering the derby to skate any afternoon from 1 to 5 p. m. for 10 cents and give free use of skates.

The derby preliminaries will be conducted at four Boston parks on himself pretty well, already.

If there was a tendency to make the signature indistinct, as if the writer were ashamed of it, it made no difference either to Private Detective Carroll or to the unctuous salesman who made the fastest sale of his career. The "Clifton Vandeveer" on the signature line was clear enough for the bank to recognize it—and that was all that was necessary! (All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

THE MARRIAGE OF BARBARA RICHARDSON

and Joseph Bradley on the Cape on Saturday was an unusually pretty one . . . both at the little Harwichport Church which was a bower of lilies and roses and at the country home of the Richardsons which is on the edge of the water . . .

It was indeed a pink wedding . . . pink roses, pink dresses, even the bride wore the blush rose satin so becoming to her fair coloring . . . her veil of rare rose point was quite the loviest we have ever seen, reaching from the crown of her pretty head to the end of her long train . . . she was a lovely, happy-looking, blushing bride . . .

NANCY AYER

Mrs. Richardson, her mother, was sweet in a really blue, blue dress with hat made of forgetmenots . . . after the festivities were over she entertained over the week-end her bridesmaids of 20 years ago . . . it was a real reunion and kept her from missing her attractive daughter while she was motoring with her new husband over the roads to Canada . . .

Everyone was exclaiming over the luncheon . . . it was too delicious and worthy of note . . . served in the garden overlooking the ocean with plenty of space to roam about in, it was a beautiful and colorful picture . . .

We glimpsed Elizabeth Morison, who received her degree from Bryn Mawr last week, in a brown and white sheer, with her delightful mother, Mrs. Horace Morison, who wore a cool black with touches of white . . .

* * *

Pink Crepe Frock Worn by Nancy Ayer

NANCY AYER, WHO WAS BEING greeted by her many friends on her recent return from Europe, wore a lovely pink crepe frock with long light blue gloves, quite Frenchy . . . her hat was a large picture hat of pink straw.

Miss Moller, the bridegroom's mother, was distingue in the popular printed silk of the mode . . .

Mrs. Fritz Talbot was stunning in pure white and Mrs. Arthur Jones chose the sky blue so appropriate for a summer wedding . . .

Polly Richardson, cousin of the bride, arrived from the World's Fair in Chicago in time for the festivities . . . later next week she is sailing with a group of girls for Europe . . . her dress was of printed silk.

Pretty Mrs. Conrad Hobbs of Chestnut Hill was noted in the large throng and we glimpsed Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chase of Milton . . . there were many Milton people present . . . Mrs. Howard George . . .

From Dedham we saw Mrs. Joseph Morrill, who was weekending with Mrs. Andrew Adie, who was also in the throng . . .

Mrs. Morison chatted a while with us . . . she has just been on to Elizabeth's graduation at Bryn Mawr, arriving back in time to say bon voyage on Saturday to her attractive daughter, Babbette, who sailed on the Scythia with Mrs. J. Colby Bassett and her daughter, Barbara . . .

Reunion in Paris Planned

NANCY MORISON SAILED YESTERDAY morning from Boston on the Milwaukee with Mary and Ann Bird for Hamburg . . . and daughter Mary is starting this week on a motor trip with Mrs. Joseph Cotton for a trip to the World's Fair, visiting a ranch in Indiana and making other stops en route . . . the Morison girls are REAL girls and very popular.

Later in the season, the various groups who are scattered through Europe and England and Scotland will meet for a grand reunion in Paris . . .

* * *

Mr. Charles Bartlett is in charge of arrangements for the supper dance which will be held at the Eel River Beach Club in Plymouth next week . . . Sammy Liner's orchestra will provide sweet music for the occasion.

* * *

Mrs. James J. Storrow will give a large ball for her niece, Edith Wendall Osborne, debutante daughter of the Thomas Mott Osborne's, this winter. Of interest to her many friends is the news that the fair debbie will study to be a veterinary during or after her presentation season is over.

* * *

Will Spend Summer in Peterboro

FOLLOWING UP OUR RECENT NEWS about the Lewis D. Parkers, Dame Rumor says that the beautiful Joanne will spend the summer up in the hills of Peterboro with her stepfather, Arthur Johnson, while her husband is flying by seaplane to the gold fields of Labrador.

* * *

During the absence of the Parkers from Charles River, their country house will be occupied by the Richard Olneys (Isobel Potter) whose marriage took place last year.

* * *

Marjorie Saltonstall will put off her debut one season in order to study in Europe next fall . . . Marjorie is the attractive daughter of the Robert Saltonstalls of Milton.

* * *

Recent comment is that the list of new members to The Country Club makes the roll read like the telephone book . . . "One can never meet one's FRIENDS at The Country Club any more; it seems more like a hotel," was a member's comment. Which makes us smile because we have always been under the impression that country clubs more closely resemble deaf and dumb asylums.

Pets in Show

MISS CECILY LIVERMORE TO MARRY WILLIS P. BEAL

TWO PRIZED ENTRIES FOR THE coming household pet show to take place at the Longwood Cricket Club, to benefit the Ladies Visiting Committee of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, are the pets of Miss Catherine Tappan and little Letitia Sargeant. "Ting-a-ling, look pretty for the cameraman," said the little daughter of the Sullivan A. Sargeants, Jr., of Needham. Catherin's father was the stroke in the Harvard crew of 1908. Mah long is the name of Miss Tappan's favorite. This popular debutante is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Tappan of Needham. (Boston American Photos).

Miss Catherine Tappan and Mah Jong.

Miss Cleveland in Engaged Group

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livermore of Pinckney st., and Topsfield, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cecily Livermore, to Mr. Willis P. Beal, son of Mrs. Lillian Darrow Beal of Beacon st. and Nahant.

Miss Livermore was graduated from Beaver Country Day school in 1929, and prior to her presentation to society in the season of 1930-31, studied painting in New York and Paris. She is a member of the Vincent Club and Junior League.

Mr. Beal prepared at St. Mark's for Harvard, where he was graduated with the class of 1925. His clubs are the Fly Club.

As yet, no date has been set for the wedding.

Nicholson-Cleveland

From Concord comes the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mason Cleveland of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Devotion Cleveland, to Mr. George James Guthrie Nicholson, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George James Guthrie Nicholson of New York and Newport.

Miss Cleveland attended the Concord Academy and studied abroad. She made her debut at a tea at the Concord Country Club in the season of 1929-30, and is a member of the Junior League. She has taken part in several plays of the Cercle Francais.

Mr. Nicholson prepared at St. George's school for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from which he was graduated in 1929. He is a member of the Number Six Club of that institute, and is now connected with the New York Edison Co. His sister, the former Miss Mary Elliott Nicholson, was married to Mr. Philip Bourne of Boston last June.

No immediate plans for the wedding have been made.

Monks-Smith

Mrs. Letchworth Smith of Mockingbird Valley, Louisville, Kentucky, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ann Letchworth Smith, to Dr. John Peabody Monks, son of Mrs. George Howland Monks of Commonwealth ave. and Monument Beach, and the late Dr. Monks.

Miss Smith was graduated from Vassar College in 1928, and is a member of the Junior League. Dr. Monks prepared at St. Mark's School for Harvard, graduating with the class of 1924. He was graduated from the Harvard Medical School in 1927.

The engagement was announced at an informal tea on Sunday at the home of Mrs. Smith. No date has been announced for the wedding.

Musicale, Tea on North Shore

Mrs. Carl Dreyfus is lending her home at Thorne Ledge, Devereaux, for an afternoon musicale sponsored by the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, on Wednesday at 3:30. Miss Jane Bogardus will be in charge of the ushers, assisted by Miss Rosamond Emerson, Miss Nancy Spalding, Miss Catherine DuBois and Miss Edith Wyman.

This is the first important musical affair of the North Shore season and the program will be given by Mr. Victor Marriotti, a violinist of the Boston Symphony orchestra. Mrs. Roland M. Baker will accompany Mr. Marriotti at the piano.

During the tea, presided over by Mrs. Edward Scott O'Keefe of Lynn, a note of gayety will be furnished by a parade of fashion on the terrace in front of Thorne Ledge. A group of prominent young society women will model the latest creations in summer fashions from Petite Chez Madelaine. Among the models will be Mrs. James W. Cunningham Gray, Jr., Mrs. Theodore W. Cunningham, Miss Sabina Lovejoy, Miss Virginia Wyman and the Misses Ann and Miriam Cotter.

For the benefit of motorists who may not know the location, markers will be placed at intersections of streets approaching Thorn Ledge.

Latest Notes o Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

NEVER did the country look more beautiful. Swampscott and Marblehead with its sweep of ocean white capped waves and everyone interested in racing. Miss Cynthia Haskell garbed in white sailor pants and blouse has been winning many races this season at Marblehead, he is an accomplished skipper.

Further down on the North Shore there is "Bubble" Sortwell, whose chief interest circles about the paddocks. She is very fond of horses. She and her sister Ivy the past two years have run a riding school with marked success. She looked fascinating the other day in a greeny blue ensemble. Sport skirt and cape with a natty hat to match. Her sisters, Miss Elise and Anne Sortwell, wore checked tweeds also with capes, and wee turban hats worn back from their faces and showing their attractive dark hair.

Mrs. Alvin Sortwell wore a white linen duster coat, reminiscent of the gay nineties, very good looking on her with a ruffle around her neck, and a white sailor hat banded with black.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, 3d, also favors the white linen coat. In fact, she was a symphony in linen, her frock being of black, smart and new, and her sailor hat also of black linen, banded in white.

We glimpsed Mrs. Joseph Woods, the former Betty Barrell of the North Shore, in a checked ensemble, tall and slender and lovely looking as ever.

Mrs. William C. Cox is now definitely settled in her beautiful home, The Oaks, at Cohasset, and has started in immediately with a benefit fashion fete for the Florence Crittenton League. Mrs. Cox has worn this spring most effectively a frock of Madonna Blue with darker trimming and a broad brimmed picture hat, also of blue.

Society Notes

THE NEW ENGLAND PEABODY Home for Crippled Children, Newton, is the charity in whose interest Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon will speak over station WLOE, Wednesday afternoon, at 4:30. Mrs. Edward B. Kellogg is the honorary president and only treasurer which this nationally known institution has ever had.

BOOKS---and Many Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

A. E. Housman, author of "A Shropshire Lad," in his lecture delivered at Cambridge this year, "The Name and Nature of Poetry," gives a new definition of poetry in twelve words which may live along with Wordsworth's. He simply says

"Poetry is not the thing said but a way of saying it."

And he continues to expound his theory with this excellent paragraph, which ends on a high note of humor:

"Even when poetry has a meaning, as it usually has, it may be indvisable to draw it out. 'Poetry gives more pleasure,' said Coleridge, 'when only generally and not perfectly understood,' and perfect understanding will sometimes almost extinguish pleasure. 'The Haunted Palace' is one of Poe's best poems so long as we are content to swim in the sensations it evokes and only vaguely apprehend the allegory. We are roused to discomfort, at least I am, when we begin to perceive how exact in detail the allegory is; when it dawns upon us that the fair palace door is Roderick Usher's mouth, the pearl and ruby his teeth and lips, the yellow banners his hair, the ramparts plumed and pallid his forehead, and when we are reduced to hoping, for it is no more than a hope, that the winged odors have no connection with hair oil."

After this it is easy to see how Mr. Housman believes that intellect is not the fount of poetry; it may actually hinder its production. Poetry seems to him more physical than intellectual.

Let all youthful bards, awaiting that elusive thing called Inspiration, listen to this confession, and work as diligently as Housman over their stanzas:

"I happen to remember distinctly the genesis of the piece which stands last in my first volume. Two of the stanzas, I do not say which, came into my head, just as they are printed, while I was crossing the corner of Hampstead Heath between the Spaniard's Inn and the footpath to Temple Fortune. A third stanza came with a little coaxing after tea. One more was needed, but it did not come; I had to turn to and compose it myself, and that was a laborious business. I wrote it 13 times and it was more than a twelvemonth before I got it right."

* * *

Several years ago, finding myself in Cambridge, I determined to meet Housman, if possible. He is the Kennedy Professor of Latin in the University. A good old don said he could arrange an interview. I had bought a copy of his poems and had it in my pocket. I wanted him to autograph it for me and inadvertently said so to my guide as we crossed the quadrangle. He held up his hands in terror, stopped abruptly amid the cobblestones, and cried out,

"Oh, oh, I beg of you not to ask him to do that! I implore you!"

* * *

My American common sense told me that I might never have a similar chance, and I wished I had never made known my sly little plan.

Introduced to the little gray mouse, sitting among his books, I was not a little abashed. He did indeed seem of some other world, as someone so exalted and aloof that I found it hard at first to talk with him. I succeeded, however, in making clear my affection for his songs, and he seemed much pleased. We appeared to be hitting it off very well, but out of the corner of my eye I could see that my guide was fearful as I should make known my heart's wish.

Suddenly the quiet little poet said, "I am flying to France tomc row for a month's holiday." And I thought, "If he is as practical as that, why should I not ask him for a practical autograph?"

But again I caught a glimpse of my preceptor's countenance. I went away without the autograph, though I well knew it would have been gladly given.

I shall never cease to regret my stupidity and cowardice.

Library Board to Name New Member

A special meeting of the trustees of the Beebe Memorial Library in Wakefield has been called for tomorrow night to elect a successor to J. Oliver Beebe, millionaire leather manufacturer and sportsman, who was killed in an airplane crash two weeks ago.

Mr. Beebe had been a trustee of the library since it was built, the Beebe family supplying a large part of the funds with which it was erected.

Gardens Open at Westwood

Four gardens are to be opened in Westwood on Tuesday, June 27, from 2 to 6, to benefit the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. These gardens are the property of Mrs. Lindsay Loring, Mrs. Frederick S. Converse, Mrs. George R. Fearing and Mrs. George R. Fearing, Jr. They are all situated high up on Fox hill st., about a mile from Westwood, and each commands a magnificent view of the surrounding hilly country. An added attraction at Mrs. Fearing's will be her rare collection of early American pieces.

Sunrise Farms, Mrs. Loring's estate, displays iris as a specialty. Woodsy paths and charming vistas everywhere make Mrs. Converse's garden a most charming one.

"ISN'T IT MARVELOUS, GINGER, THE WAY THIS SOAP KEEPS OUR SKIN SO YOUNG-LOOKING?"
"YES, NO WONDER WE'VE USED IT FOR YEARS! OF COURSE THERE'S A REASON WHY IT'S SO GOOD. HAVEN'T YOU HEARD WHAT SCIENTISTS SAY*..."

*What a scientist told the Hollywood stars...

All over the country...

"This soap contains precious elements skin itself has and must have to stay youthful. It's the loss of these elements that makes skin old-looking. This soap checks the loss of these precious elements from the skin."

Cynthia Rogers, Middletown, N. Y., says, "It's amazing how Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin young-looking."

OF COURSE, the lovely screen stars find this beauty soap marvelous—for years they've used it to keep their skin satin-smooth, radiantly young-looking.

Now scientists explain WHY this soap is such a wonderful aid in keeping skin young-looking.

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Nature puts certain precious elements into all types of skin to keep it youthful; young skin is rich in them. It's the gradual loss of these vital elements, as years go by, that makes skin grow rough, heart-breakingly dull and old-looking.

But now scientists tell you, tests show Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements Nature puts in skin itself to keep it youthful. And so it checks the loss of these precious elements from the skin.

This soap, they declare, with its complete freedom from harshness, its ready solubility and its content of precious elements, is a wonderful aid in keeping skin smooth, youthful.

Small wonder so many famous screen stars are enthusiastic about it! 686 out of 694 important Hollywood actresses are devoted to this fragrant, white soap. And it's the official soap in all the big film studios.

Why not start today to give your skin this scientific care?

For EVERY Type of Skin...dry...oily..."in-between"—BEGIN TODAY!

Al Jolson Returns to Air Waves Tonight; Guest Star in Paul Whiteman's Show

By N. F. T.

Good old Al (Mammy) Jolson never meant what he said when he stated he was all washed up with loudspeaker life on the ozone waves. If he did, he now takes it all back. Checking over our very carefully kept column files, your sometimes far-sighted fellow citizen here comes upon the clipping covering that Jolson outburst about everything being over between him and commerical broadcastingdom. All of which was laughed off in this space at the time. This evening the famous sentimental song and story man returns to radio ranks (WEEI) at 9:30, mastering ceremonies throughout the new Paul Whiteman program.

* * *

Said studio show is the highly touted two-hour presentation backed by big cheese making interests in Milwaukee. Much sparkling festivity will attend the premiere program performance in New York tonight, with Jolson just about as responsible for all the excitement as weighty Mr. Whiteman, the boss.

* * *

It's one of those one time "guest artist" arrangements, which is the policy to be followed as future offerings go coast to coasting every Monday night. Celebrated personalities in the entertainment world will hold forth from week to week, supplementing glorified jazz music rendition by Paul and his instrumental playmates.

* * *

Postmaster-General James A. Farley speaks this evening (WBZ) to review Roosevelt administration achievements, his voice waiting across at 10 p. m.

FAVORITES FEATURED

Three wonderful old time tunes are due when "Singin' Sam" solos tonight (WNAC) 8 o'clock. He promises "Little Grey Home in the West" followed by "In the Valley of the Moon" and "Down by the Old Cherry Orchard" at the close.

* * *

Those "Potash and Perlmutter" comedy sketches get started over NBC chain channels tonight at 8:30, scheduled to occupy Monday, Wednesday and Friday spots at the same time henceforth, but are not being served up in these parts. Listeners who have an idea they might like Messrs. "Abe" and "Mawruss" as microphone men, can hear them by dialing to the WJZ wave out of New York.

FIGHT FIGURING FIZZLES

No round by round radio report of the Sharkey-Carnera title fight in New York will be broadcast Thursday night, for the same reason as none was networked when brawny Mr. Baer beat up young Herr Schmeling—meaning money. Sponsors of the "Baron Munchausen" bit were recently rumored as ready to put up the gold or silver nuggets necessary. However, they called things off entirely when boxing box officers who own the scrap set their ringside royalty at something said to resemble $15,000 and firmly refusing to reduce the ransom.

Man With Bogus $5 Seized in City Hall

Words failed a namesake of Greece's most famous orator when Demosthenes N. Athenian was detected today at City Hall trying to pay part of his $250 fee for a license to sell beer in his Washington st., South End restaurant with a bogus $5 bill.

The sharp eye of Daniel Grant, assistant city collector, detected the bill, and Officer Fred Thorne took Demosthenes to the Federal building for arraignment before U. S. Commr. Jenney.

Cost of Living Rose 0.8 P. C. in May

New York, June 26 (AP)—Upsays the National Industrial Conference Board—goes the cost of living.

The board's monthly index showed today living costs for May were 0.8 per cent higher than in April.

The purchasing power of the dollar, the index showed, was 138.7 in May as compared with 139.9 in April, the 1923 dollar being taken as 100.

Free for All Riot at Political Picnic

Pittsburgh, June 26 (AP)—A riot call early today sent police cars hurrying to a picnic held in honor of Rep. Michael Muldowney, near suburban Mt. Lebanon.

Nineteen persons, most of them bruised and with clothing torn, were arrested. Police said two automobile accidents were caused by the disturbance. Muldowney, a Republican, last fall in the 32nd Congressional district defeated Mrs. Anne Felix, Democrat, who is contesting.

Earthquake Kills 67 in Sumatra

Amsterdam, June 26 (INS)—Sixty-seven persons were killed today when a sharp earthquake shook the region south of Benkoelen, Sumatra, according to messages from Batavia, Java.

Batavia also was shaken by the tremors.

Bootlegs Held in Bad Money Charge

An alleged attempt to pay for a load of bootleg alcohol with counterfeit $10 bills led today to the arrest of two Framingham men, charged with passing the counterfeit.

The two men, Anneseno Uva and John Spinattola, were taken into custody by Framingham police in co-operation with Secret Service agents, who were tipped off about a dispute between Uva and Spinatola over the alcohol.

W. J. Brady Funeral to Be Held Tuesday

Funeral services for William J. Brady, retired Boston stock broker, who died suddenly in his home in Parkway, Revere, Saturday, will be held tomorrow with a high mass of requiem at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, that city.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Brady, and four brothers and one sister, all of Melrose. He was a member of Melrose Lodge of Elks and of the Boston Checker Club.

DEFINITIONS OF BEAUTY TO WIN FAIR TRIPS

Just what is your ideal of feminine beauty?

Upon your answer depends your chance of being one of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser readers to receive a free trip to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago next month.

Is woman's beauty skin deep or does it depend on inner qualities? Must your ideal woman be either blond or brunette, aggressive of a "clinging vine," thin or plump, young or old, intelligent or just good to look upon?

It doesn't matter so much what opinion you may have about feminine beauty. Everything depends on the soundness of your reasons and the way you express them. If you can give a definition of your ideal of a beautiful woman in 100 words or less then you can win one of those eight-day (all expenses paid) tours to Chicago.

SIDE TRIPS

The trip will be identically the same as the de luxe personally conducted tours which are being arranged for thousands of New Englanders by the Bauer Travel Service, 182 Tremont st., Boston. It will include a side trip to Niagara Falls and to Royal Oak, Mich., where a visit will be made to the Shrine of the Little Flower and the home of Father Coughlin as well as a visit to Belle Isle Park in Detroit. Four days will be spent on the exposition grounds giving the winners ample time to see everything at the World's Fair.

The Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser are offering two such trips (one to each winner) for the two best definitions of feminine beauty. Anyone can enter this contest, excepting employes and members of their families, of the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser.

So watch Tuesday's Boston American for more details about this unusual offer. Don't send in any definitions until full particulars are published in the Boston American.

PICTURE EACH DAY

Beginning next Wednesday and continuing for the next 18 days, the American and the Sunday Advertiser each day will publish a picture of a beautiful girl. They will be pictures of the beauties appearing in "Gold-Diggers of 1933" the musical picture now showing at the Majestic theater. After seeing the 18 pictures you become a beauty judge. You are to select one of the 18 pictures of the girls which is your ideal of feminine beauty and then write your reason in 100 words or less.

It's going to be simple to win a trip to the World's Fair—So watch Tuesday's American for more details.

FREE TRIPS TO FAIR FOR BEAUTY OPINIONS

A beauty contest in which readers of the Boston American will be the judges gets underway next Wednesday. Here's a group of beauties from the chorus, "Gold Diggers of 1933." What do you think of them? No, don't express your opinion now. Wait until you see the other 18 beauties. Then write your opinion in 100 words or less.

Thieves Lift Milton Man's Mortgages

Week-end thieves in Milton lifted half a dozen mortgages, Milton police were informed today. The mortgages were in a small safe in the home of John D. Cruickshank, Winsor rd., builder. The safe also contained a $50 Liberty bond, bankbooks and papers.

Pond Cleared for Trout Paradise

Derry, N. H.,—June 26 (AP)—Seventeen hundred and fifty pounds of chemical today were dumped into Scobie's Pond where State officials are making a Utopian fishing ground.

Auto Rams Tree; Driver Is Killed

Canaan, N. H, June 26 (AP)—Harold Barber, 37, was injured fatally and Miss Mary Thayer, 23, slightly hurt as their auto struck a tree at the foot of a hill. Both lived in Springfield, Mass., and were employes of the Springfield Gas Light Co.

Nationwide Strike of Teachers Looms

Milwaukee, June 26 (AP)—American school teachers, alarmed by payless pay days and retrenchment in school administrations, may forget about ethics and go on strike, said Mrs. Florence Curtis Hanson, Chicago, executive secretary of the American Federation of Teachers, today. Mrs. Hanson was here for meetings preliminary to the 17th annual convention of the association, opening tomorrow.

3 Go to Hospital in Auto Smashup

Three Greater Boston men were seriously injured in an automobile crash at Ross' corner, near Derry, N. H., today. The injured were taken to a Manchester hospital. They are Carnio Penzaralle, 54, and Salvatore Dippierta, 34, both of Somerville, and Sebaftiano Sela, 62, of Medford. William J. Baker, 38, of Dorchester st., Boston, driver of the other machine, was charged with reckless driving.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should flow out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get them two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

WORKERS AIDED IN BOSTON CODE

New employes' associations may find a place in Boston department stores if the federal government approves the new code drafted by the National Dry Goods Association in New York under the terms of the Industrial Recovery Act.

The code, in the drafting of which Boston merchants played a major part, provides a maximum 48-hour working week, minimum wages from $9 to $18 for various classes of employes, and the employes' right to bargain collectively.

The "fair competition" section provides for a minimum mark-up of 10 per cent on all merchandise, condemns misrepresentation, criticism of competitors' goods or prices, and prohibits the sale of prison-made goods.

The agreement will be submitted to Gen. Hugh Johnson, administrator of national recovery, by Lew Hahn, president of the Dry Goods Association.

P. A. O'Connell of the E. T. Slattery Co. and D. E. Moeser of Conrad Co. were among Boston members of the committee that drafted the code. Felix Vorenberg of Gilchrists, E. J. Frost of Filene's, and H. F. Twomey of Jordan Marsh Co. were on a committee that reviewed the work.

Wishing will not fill your vacancies—advertising will. Use the Classified Rental columns of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser consistently, if you want consistent good results.

Mussolini Reveals List of Offenders

Rome, June 26 (INS)—Some of the most prominent persons in Italy have been revealed as "offenders" against Premier Mussolini's "Buy Italian" drive in lists published in the Roman Daily Il Giornale D'Italian.

These lists today included the name of Princess Jane De San Faustino, the former Jane Campbell, of New York.

The names were published as a government reprimand because the people involved purchased clothes in Paris instead of in Italy.

Different Kinds of Tobaccos Make a Difference in Taste and Aroma

. . . Take Chesterfields, for Instance

SOME cigarettes are made out of only one kind of tobacco...while others are made from several different kinds.

And everyone can understand that different tobaccos make a difference in taste and aroma. Chesterfields are a good example of this difference.

You see it's not easy to make Chesterfield's milder taste. It takes three distinct kinds of Domestic tobaccos. Then these must be seasoned with the right amount of Turkish. And they must be blended and cross-blended until their flavors are welded together . . . to make a cigarette that has character and yet is not too strong . . . to make a cigarette that's milder, a cigarette that tastes better.

Hogsheads of Domestic Tobaccos stored away for curing.
Choice Turkish Tobaccos come to Chesterfield warehouses in bales like these.

Roxbury Man Defends Stand of "Softer" Graduates

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I AM TURNING the Column today over to a very interesting letter written me by Mr. Harold Milontaler of Roxbury in answer to my article on June 14, in which I suggested that the unemployed college graduate might go to Hitler and that, therefore, he ought to tackle any job that comes along. I agree somewhat with Mr. Milontaler, but I insist that if the chemist can't get a chemist's job he had much better work at anything useful until one turns up.

R. E. ROGERS

The whole letter seeems to me to breathe that rather unfortunate attitude taken by modern educators and their products and by sociologists generally, that life must be made pleasant, cultural and amusing even for people whose primary need is work and wages. The right kind of college man will take what comes, regardless of the "atmosphere" of the job, and will be found, ten years from now, to be miles ahead of the softer breed whose point of view my correspondent expresses. A good man can make a go of one job as well as another, without feeling "frustrated." If it is the wrong job he can be trusted to work his way out of it into the right job.

Easier Life for Woods Army

"The Civilian Conservation Corps neglects the human values of life," says the letter. "The work is hard. The life is semi-military; the restriction of personal liberty is too rigid. Add a wee bit more. Provide a package of cigarettes every other day. Give the boys a chance to shoot pool and bowl two evenings a week. Let them see a weekly movie. A dance every Saturday night is not an unreasonable request. These trifles make that vital difference between living and existing for most unemployed youths. And the work performed earns them. Moreover the term of service required is too long. Cut it down to six months. Or at the end of that period allow them a week to look for a job outside. If they do not find one they will be glad to serve for another six months. If they do others will be eager to take their places. For the average person will not shirk hard work provided he can earn some fun by it.

"This problem of restoring a tiny margin of value to life is more serious and complicated in dealing with the college graduate. As his range of pleasures and interests is wider, deeper and more complex, so does he suffer the complete impoverishment of life to have existence more acutely. He has probably discovered how he is best suited to serve society. He knows approximately where he can fit in. This urge to achieve one's dimly yet definitely perceived place in society is often the dominant value which integrates and gives meaning to his whole life. It must not be completely and hopelessly frustrated at the very start. For then both society and the individual are doomed to empty, violent chaos.

"Such statements as this one from the Survey Graphic are ominous: 'Recent college graduates are to be found in all sorts of ill-paid, dead-end occupations.' A Boston paper phrased the problem adequately when it said: 'Every boy who graduates from college represents a substantial investment of private and public capital, and that investment should be utilized for the purpose for which it was made. That means placing him in some occupation where he can exercise the knowledge that he has acquired.'

"If a young graduate feels that he is equipped for a career in commercial chemistry, do not force him to hard, menial labor for ten hours a day at $10 a week in an overall factory. Do not tell him to pack overalls as honestly and seriously as he can, use his brains as much as hammering nails in a crate allows, and trust to a certain habit the world has of muddling through somehow, in spite of the theorists and the experts.

Young America Going Hitler?

"Rather start him in the research laboratory of some company, be it large or small. If you cannot afford him for full time, give him part time, be it for only one day a week. Or for even two hours a week. But contact him, however loosely, with the particular environment and activity he has chosen and prepared for. And then you will not have to fret about idle slackers.

"Otherwise there is real danger that even the American college graduate might go Hitler. It is a rather sobering thought for America; given, as you point out, enough employment and the wrong kind of jobs and a Fascist movement certainly will start and succeed. It will be just too bad when the engineers and scientists, say some young, brilliant chemist with formulas of explosives at his fingertips, stop their brooding inactivity and start throwing rocks. In a violent start be the real danger and the sobering thought.

"The way to prevent us from going Hitler, that is, from the violent start, is to give us our chance to get to our proper places. The boys do know perfectly well that the present administration's plans are Fascism, and you're right, we do highly approve of it. We are glad that, as Walter Lippman writes, 'what we are witnessing today is the fusion of nationalism with collectivism, of the philosophy of protection and the ideal of a planned economy.' Moreover we are willing and eager to so order our lives and our economic activities as to avoid the dangers which have plunged us into our present morass.

"For we rather suspect that it has been character and not brains that has failed. We are anxious to exert that certain quality of will, solamented by Prof. Irving Babbit, in curbing and controlling our emotions and desires as indicated and directed by human reason. But if our energies and talents are to be completely blocked and frustrated from expression and utilization in the right way, they are going to explode in the wrong way. If we are to be called to the colors more quickly than we realize, if we are to be asked to take command long before we feel competent, give us then the initial contacts by which to take hold, and we will hurry to make ourselves ready. We shall try to be patient a little longer as you fumble and stumble amidst the problems, for we acknowledge their bewildering complexity.

"We have confidence in human reason. We have faith in the theorists and experts. What is required is practical administrators with the will and character to apply their findings. We do not trust that certain habit the world has of muddling through somehow. We are going to take President Marsh's advice and show more intelligence in finding our economic way than white rats show finding their way out of a maze."

KENNETH BUCK NOW IN REAL DUNGEON

Convicted Kidnaper of Peggy McMath Starts Serving His 25 Years

Kenneth Buck went into State Prison today, the end of an exciting road into which he turned May 2 when he kidnaped 10-year-old Peggy McMath of Harwichport.

The convicted kidnaper was curious about just what solitary confinement was like, but he learned within a short time after being registered at State Prison to begin his sentence of 25 to 30 years in the dungeons.

At noon tomorrow, Kenneth will be taken from solitary and put through the usual medical and scientific tests to determine for what work he is best fitted. It is probable, however, he may go to work in the machine shop, as he has been an automobile mechanic.

Kenneth came over the road to Boston by automobile in custody of deputy sheriffs, and only jail officials were present to see him off, the family having said farewells yesterday.

"I said before the trial that I'd be framed, and I have been," was his parting shot, but before that he had remarked that he was sorry to leave his wife and six-year-old son.

WANTS HIS PHOTO.

Kenneth arrived at the prison at 1.20 p. m. after a motor ride from Barnstable, which took 2 hours and 50 minutes. He was handcuffed to Deputy Sheriff William Winston and Sergt. Arthur Hamilton of Falmouth, while Sheriff Lauchlan M. Crocker of Barnstable County drove the car.

Outside the prison, the party posed for newspaper pictures and Kenneth, turning to a girl reporter, said:

"Be sure and send me one of those papers."

As he parted with the sheriff, to become prisoner No. 10,048, Kenneth shook hands with Crocker and invited him to "drop in and call" whenever he was in the neighborhood of the prison.

Meanwhile today, his attorney, Elias Burwick of Worcester, mailed to Judge Edward C. Hanify, presiding justice in the kidnap trial at Barnstable, a motion for a new trial for Kenneth.

Atty. Burwick based his motion on the grounds of new evidence and Orleans man who will testify that one of the witnesses in the trial committed perjury in a major angle of the case.

PEGGY'S KIDNAPER AT END OF HIS TRAIL

DEPUTY WINSTON — KENNETH BUCK — SERGT. HAMILTON

Kenneth Buck reached the end of the trail today. He heard prison locks at Charlestown clang fearfully behind him—and all hope within him died. Thus did the law write "Finis" on that chapter dealing with the kidnaping of little Peggy McMath less than two months ago. Escorting Buck to prison were Deputy Sheriff William Winston of Barnstable and Sergt. Arthur Hamilton of Falmouth. (Boston American photo.)

10,000 PREPARE FOR ELABORATE EXERCISES

International Body to Hear Reports From Leaders

The first plenary session of the 24th annual convention of Rotary International opens in Mechanics Building at 2 p. m. today with almost 10,000 members of the world famous organization expected to take part

Chairman Robert E. Heun of the convention committee will preside at this opening session. The city's guests will then be welcomed by Gov. [illegible] acting Mayor McGrath, president Henry F. Dexter, of the Rotary Club of Boston, and Ernest W. Dunbar, of Cambridge, governor of the 31st district.

Response for the audience of [illegible] will be given by [illegible] of Shanghai, China, director nominee. This will be followed by the adoption of the convention program

TO HEAR REPORTS

After an address, "Why We Are Here," by Wilfrid Andrews of Sittingbourne, England, director, there will be a brief period of announcement and greetings which, in turn, will be followed by a message from Paul P. Harris, president emeritus, of Chicago. Reports of officers will next be heard, and the session will then recess. Meetings of various delegations will be held later at designated points.

Tonight will be international fellowship evening. New England's welcome to Rotary International. There will be a band concert, entertainment and dancing, the program taking place in Mechanics Hall.

Busy sessions have been arranged for the following days of the convention this week. However, the entertainment side of the convention has not been neglected, an unusual program has been arranged for the guests during their stay here.

Today's program includes preparation of a list of candidates from which five directors of Rotary from the United States will be selected.

DEBATES PLANNED

Questions to be debated will include whether Rotary clubs in the United States will undertake to ascertain the need of character education, the subject of foreign students entering the United States with respect to the organization's seeking to have the government modify regulations hindering the entry of students lacking sufficient funds to pay their way, and the transient youth problem of the United States.

Resolutions of an international character are scheduled for Thursday's program. One, backed by the international board of directors, suggests that Rotary sponsor a world conference to select a universal auxiliary language to be taught in all public schools.

The second deals with exchange of ideas between clubs of different nations to promote understanding of financial problems of various nations and to foster international disarmament and other measures to restore world prosperity.

11,000 EXPECTED

The spirit of good-fellowship characteristic of Rotary was evident all over Boston this weekend. Flags, bunting and banners, bearing words of welcome, appeared everywhere. Thousands of delegates and members of the organization poured into the city yesterday and Saturday from all parts of the world. More are expected today and it is estimated some 11,000 will be present when the convention actually gets under way.

Mechanics Building, where all the plenary sessions will be held, has been transformed into a cool and beautiful convention hall. The decorations are simple and modernistic.

Police Guard Steps of Melrose Students

While instructors have been teaching Melrose public school pupils to make footprints in the sands of time, they never have taught them to make footprints in newly laid cement walks, particularly those about the new Melrose high school.

Because Melrose high undergraduates have insisted upon leaving their impressions in the new cement walks where all who enter or leave Melrose high in future years may see, a special police detail has been assigned there so the walks will not again have to be relaid.

East Boston Scouts Join Hunt in Reading for Lost Boy

Boy Scouts from East Boston and Reading joined with two police dogs and Reading police and firemen today in search for Edmund Santamaria, three, who vanished from the home of his aunele in North Reading yesterday morning.

Ten Scouts from Troop 2 in the section of East Boston where the baby's father, a barber, lives, were taken to North Reading this afternoon, equipped to remain out all night if necessary.

Meanwhile two police dogs, one of them Bella von Armschloss, veteran trailer owned by Harriet Seifert of Northampton, were drafted in the search for the little boy who wandered away, with his cousin, from the home of Philip Famolare in Spring st., North Reading.

TWO DOGS IN HUNT.

The three-year-old cousin, Philip Famolare, Jr., was found half a mile away, in Park st., West, in the Liberty Acres section, several hours after the disappearance, but he could not say where Edmund had gone. Albert Mecogni, with his police dog Beauty, found the Famolare boy, and Beauty was out hunting today with Bella von Armschloss for the Santamaria boy.

Ponds and brooks in the neighborhood were drained by Reading fire department without disclosing trace of the child.

Meanwhile, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Santamaria, parents of the boy, are frantically searching the wooded neighborhood, assisted by a score of friends and relatives.

State police and Reading firemen combed the woods from Reading to Wilmington without result, and fear the boy may have been drowned.

KIDNAPING DOUBTED

Evelyn Santamaria, 13, sister of the missing boy, told state police an automobile which was parked near the spot where the 3-year-old cousin of the missin gboy was found, drove away rapidly when a group of searchers approached the spot yesterday. But state police do not believe the child was kidnaped and are continuing their search in the belief that the child simply wandered off and was lost.

Both children were missed early yesterday morning.

TRUCKMEN TO FIGHT OUSTER

Massachusetts motorists were warned today that legislation pending against motor trucks was aimed to first put the trucks off the road and later would lead to a similar fate for motor cars.

The warning was delivered by Capt. E. C. Benway, manager of the Motor Truck Club of Massachusetts in a radio address.

"We urge the shippers of this Commonwealth to vigorously oppose the enactment of legislation that will deny them the right to select the form of transportation most economical for their particular requirements," he said.

"Records show that motor trucks, while representing but 13½ per cent of all motor vehicles, pay 28½ per cent of all motor levies.

"There as been no public demand for this legislation, because the motor truck is an economic necessity to our industries."

Missing Youth Hunted

An appeal to find George V. MacEnany 18, of 2 Day st., Wakefield, missing from home since Tuesday, was made by his parents today. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall, of dark complexion, and was wearing blue overalls and a dark blue shirt

Miss Kane Bride in Charlestown

The marriage of Miss Mary Kane, Boston school teacher of Charlestown, to Adolph Guilliotte, of Boston, will be solemnized this morning in St. Mary's Church in Charlestown.

The bride is the daughter of Daneil J. Kane, for many years assistant corporation counsel of Boston and exalted ruler of the Elks. She is a graduate of the Boston Normal school and has studied at the Sorbonne in Paris

Tufts Romance Ends in Wedding

From Petersburg, Ill., comes word of the culmination of a Tufts College romance. Miss Mary G. Blane, daughter of F. E. Blane, of Petersburg was a fellow in history at Tufts after graduating from Rockford College in 1930.

Newman B. Birk, of Medford, graduate of Tufts and an instructor in English at that college, met the Illinois girl during her two years at Tufts. Today came word that the couple were married in Petersburg yesterday and that they will make their home in Medford.

MARRIAGE DEFINED AS "BRIEF INTERVAL BETWEEN COURTSHIP AND COURTHOUSE"

Clothes Are What You Make Them

By Margaret Matson

Sometimes—

—when I see women with too much poundage wearing the brightest colors in the world, and donning these little pique waistcoats with the hilarious.y wide shoulders and pinched in waistlines.

—when cotton sports frocks that look so practical and girlish are worn with high hats with VEILS,

—when girls with long, thin faces drag their hair up from their ears as though it offended them.

—and girls with chubby cheeks give themselves the whole works of long bob bangs, earrings, and higher than high necklines.

—when white is no longer quite white

—when colors nearly match, but not quite, and are combined with no rhyme nor reason.

—when shoes have tipsy heels, and stockings have twisted seams, or are just any old color that happens to be clean.

—when faces are loaded with powder or spotted with rouge that looks as though it had been applied through a stencil.

—when girls go scurrying to offices in dresses down to their ankles.

—and when people who could be very attractive allow themselves to be utterly drab.

—when girdles don't fit,

—or don't exist,

—or cover only part of the area they should.

—then clothes seem a most discouraging sort of thing.

So we take ourselves out for a cup of coffee . . . and there sitting at the next table is someone with a most delightful hat . . . or the loveliest skin . . . or a perfect color combination . . . or a new trick that we haven't seen before . . . or a piece of jewelry that is exquisite . . . or a pair of faultlessly shod feet . . . or an original model that we can recognize without consulting the label . . . THEN clothes are the most fascinating topic in all the world!

Tubbable and Chic and Simple

White Chairs, Flesh Walls, Rich Brown Wood

The Paris apartment of Mme. Helena Rubinstein is reputed to be one of the finest examples of modern interior decoration in the world. Pictured here is one corner showing the formality with which much of it is handled. White leather upholsters the chairs; the walls are flesh and brown, and all the woods and rugs are in varying shades of brown. Pictures by Matisse, Picasso, Modegliani, and Marcoussis line the walls.

Take Air Baths in the Health Campaign

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

THIS IS the time of year when interest in sunshine is universal. Everyone is anxious to acquire a healthy coat of tan. No one will deny the many advantages and health benefits of the sun bath. Yet few realize and appreciate the real importance and value of air baths.

Dr. Copeland

Too little emphasis has been placed upon the value of exposing the body to currents of fresh air. I am confident that if air baths were to become as popular a fad as sun baths, great benefits would be derived. I am glad that modern bathing suits and sport clothes allow ample exposure of the skin surface to the air.

Air baths should be taken during the fall and winter months, as well as during the warm weather. Bear in mind that sudden and prolonged exposure to cold air is dangerous to health. During cold weather air baths should be begun in moderation. The preferable time for them is in the morning.

Air baths are most beneficial when taken outdoors. When weather and facilities do not permit this, they should be taken in a moderately cool, well ventilated room.

For the first bath, only half the body should be exposed. As the body becomes accustomed to the cool air, more clothes can be discarded. Air baths should never be taken by aged, under-nourished or weakened individuals.

A good plan is to take a warm tub bath and then an air bath. Be sure the body is thoroughly dry before exposing it to the air. Never take an air bath if you feel chilled, fatigued or below par.

Air baths improve the texture and tone of the skin. This strengthening is of vital importance to the body. The skin is an important aid in regulating the heat mechanism of the body.

Health Queries

R. E. T. Q—What causes one to clear the throat all the time?

A—This is probably due to nasal catarrh.

Mrs S. J. Q—Is soda harmful if taken for a cold?

A—No. This is beneficial in some instances

A. J. G. Q—Can a cyst be removed without an operation? 2. I am 5 years old 5 feet 6 inches tall. What should I weigh?

A—No operation is necessary. 2. You should weigh about 132 pounds. This is the average weight for one of your age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

Wonderful Results With Recipes for Frozen Desserts of Only Four Ingredients

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

"MY HUSBAND has just presented me with a big new electric refrigerator. Do send me recipes for lots of good things to make in it," enthuses Mrs. V. M., of Everett—and we know just how delighted she is. We almost turned handsprings when our infant refrigerator was wheeled in—and it has purred prettily in the kitchen corner for nine months now, without missing a beat. We began to feel that maybe we ought to give it a drink of oil or something

Early in our work with frozen desserts adapted to electric refrigerators we learned that with just four ingredients, no cooking, and very little cream, we could get marvelous results. Instead of a buttery, crème-de-stiffened, too-rich product, we can produce easy, delicious, economical ice creams in jig time

Let's get the box of berries out of the ice chest and make enough cream for six people in almost less time than it takes to tell. Here's how:

F. S.—We will be glad to send you a collection of lesson sheets left over from our spring cooking school on receipt of six cents in stamps for return postage. Address Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream

2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk
½ cup water
1 cup strawberries
¼ cup confectioners' (4X) sugar
1 cup whipping cream

Blend the sweetened milk and water thoroughly. Add strawberries which have been crushed and sweetened with sugar. (The average strawberries require about ¼ cup sugar.) Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency, and fold into chilled mixture. Pour into freezing pan. Place in freezing unit. After mixture has frozen to a stiff mush (one to two hours) remove from refrigerator. Scrape mixture from sides and bottom of pan. Beat 2 minutes. Smooth out and replace in freezing unit for one hour, or until frozen for serving (Two to five hours, total freezing time.) Serves six.

Chocolate Bisque

3 squares bitter chocolate
1 1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
2 eggs, separated
1-8 tsp salt
1-3 cup graham cracker crumbs
1 cup hot water

Melt chocolate in double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk and stir over boiling water 5 minutes until mixture thickens. Remove.

Wonders Why She's Not Popular

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I seem to be fairly popular among the people with whom I come in contact, although I am not a pretty girl. I am a very plain-looking girl, of the fair type. Some time ago I met a young man who is several years older than I. For quite a while he used to come to se me, then all of a sudden he stopped. I saw him several times and still meet him occasionally. This is not the first instance I have had of such an experience. Do you have any idea why I have such luck? Why is it that girls who are much plainer than I, girls who can't hold an intelligent conversation with anyone, seem to have all the men they want? DOLLY

Dear Dolly: You tell me you're plain, but there are no plain girls today unless they're too indifferent to make themselves attractive. You talk about girls not being able to hold an intelligent conversation. Perhaps that's the trouble. Few men care for intelligent conversations. They like to be amused and flattered. Try a new tack with them and see how that works. And good luck!

He Stopped Speaking

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About four weeks ago I went to a party where I met a boy whom I have learned to like very much. He, however, after the second party we attended together, stopped speaking to me, and now he ignores me altogether. What I have done to make him angry, I don't know. FORLORN.

Dear Forlorn: You tell me you have done nothing to offend this young man; why then do you want to be friendly to anyone who has treated you so rudely?

I had been in the habit of getting an auto ride into Boston by a young friend of the family, some time had passed and I had not seen him, so had been riding on the cars. This particular morning the car had stopped for the red light at the corner where I generally got my auto ride, so upon looking out the window, I thought I saw my friend, whereupon I quickly left the street car and bounced right into the auto and sat down beside the driver, and then, to my embarrassment, I looked and saw it wasn't my friend at all, but someone who looked like him.

Do You Know Your Own Beauty?

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT'S DIFFICULT to know exactly how we look. After all we are ourselves only in the mirror—and often thatis in a poor light

I wonder if many of us really know what our real beauty problems are? Are we really lovely, or do we just think so? Are we homely or do we think so? Often one is as mistaken about the latter as the former—perhaps more so.

We suggest you do this: Take a hand mirror, as large a one as you have, and take it near the window. Let the full daylight shine on your face (not sunlight, however). Look closely at your skin.

We are printing a little questionnaire which we should like you to fill out.

Check those words which apply to your complexion, please, and mail it to us

June Bride's Lucky to Have Such an Accurate Road Map, Says Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

WHAT A LUCKY GIRL is the June bride of 1933! Never before have women started on the journey of matrimony with such an accurate road-map, such a clear knowledge of their destination, and such a complete guide to men!

Only two short years ago reckless young couples were being married in airplanes and speeding that way symbolic of the flighty and short-lived marriages of that day. Every other marriage was just the first step toward Reno the brief interval between the courtship and the courthouse.

Helen Rowland

The average girl was completely at sea about men. She didn't know whether to be subtle and vampish and sophisticated—or to be frank and friendly and casual. Whether to be sweet and feminine and old-fashioned—or to be wild and gay and full of whoopee.

* * *

She couldn't decide whether to darken her eyelids, soak her hair in heavy perfume and go about half-draped—and appeal to a man's senses. Or to swathe herself modestly in chiffons, cuff-ate a slinky walk and try to appeal to his imagination.

* * *

She didn't know whether to rush into a man's arms and respond eagerly to his kisses and run the risk of frightening him off. Or to snub his overtures and refuse to accept his casual love-making—and run the risk of losing a date

* * *

And men were equally hazy about women. They suspected all women—but were never quite sure of what they suspected them.

* * *

With no traffic rules to guide them, no wonder so many dizzy-headed young lovers plunged into marriage, right off the deep-end

* * *

But these past two years seem to have DONE something to us. To have sobered us up, brought us out of the fog, and made men and women see and understand each other clearly. Girls have dropped their poses and men have shed their doubts and cynicism. For, the first time in centuries, when a man and a woman looking into each other's eyes, at the altar, they can read each other's meaning. All the traffic lights to a happy marriage are bright and clear, and both of them know all the signals!

* * *

There will be fewer detours and fewer smashups among the June's weddings than there have been in a decade! Here's to the lucky bride of 1933!

Local Boy Makes Good

THE TITLE of this story is a four-word biography of Henry Jonquil. For he had made good on a large scale. He was rich famous and fairly young. Life was still sweet, and the depression still a rumor. He was a lucky guy, this Henry Jonquil.

When he was a mere kid, Kelceyville had been his world. It was a small town, with a main street, a postoffice, a general store and a hay and feed emporium.

That, to Henry Jonquil, was the whole world. There was nothing beyond that, except two steel rails that narrowed into the distance beyond Jones's farm.

From early morn, he would sit on the milk cans at the siding and wait for the 9.37 freight to lumber slowly toward Kelceyville.

Henry was 16 when the two biggest things of his life occurred. One was that his father died, and left him alone. He never remembered his mother. The other thing was that he saw his first horseless carriage.

The machine had once come through the village with a great deal of racket and smoke.

Of those two things, the horseless carriage impressed him more. Not that he didn't have affection for his father. He did.

He heard the men in the saloon call the machine 'The Devil's Contraption.'

Henry Jonquil heard no more. For, on the very next morning after waiting as usual for the 9.37, he had hopped aboard the freight as it passed the siding. He left his world for new ones . . .

In a large city to the north he got his first start. A wealthy horse trader had turned his stables into automobile manufactories. The boy had little trouble getting a job there.

The boy more than justified the faith of his employer. He learned quickly, and in a short while knew more of the intricacies of a motor than most of his confreres.

After awhile, he persuaded his boss to let him drive one of the machines in a County Fair race. Henry won, with coattails flying. He went into more races, and won most of them. Only three times was he beaten. Once by Gaston Chevrolet. Once by a daredevil named Henry Ford. And once by that half-mile-in-a-minute speed demon Barney Oldfield.

When the racing season was over, Henry petitioned the mayors and aldermen of various cities to abandon fire horses for motorized trucks. The going was tough, and officials were hard to convince. And, during this stage of his work, the up-and-coming Henry Jonquil acquired a hearty dislike for horses.

But Henry made plenty in his campaign against horses. So much so, in fact, that he was able to go into partnership with another automobile driver and start manufacturing his own cars.

Then it was that the automobile really got a foothold in the American imagination. And, after two years of coining money, Henry Jonquil lost all of his zest for automobiling.

His money wasn't long idle, however. For, on his arrival in New York, he learned that two men named Wright had successfully flown a motorized egg crate at Kittyhawk, N. C.

Without a second's hesitation, Henry Jonquil plunged into aviation knee deep in struts, wires and motorcycle motors. The first plane he flew was one that he had gone to great expense to manufacture. It took off beautifully. The only hitch in the proceedings was that Henry Jonqil was left on the ground, watching it fly in crazy circles until it fell apart on a hillside.

Discouraged? Not on your life. He manufactured another one. And then another. And still yet another. Until the war came. Then he made them by the dozen, and when they crashed in France, he made more to replace them.

Thus, the poor local boy became a great millionaire. And thus too, the weekly newspaper in Kelceyville took up the campaign to erect a fitting monument to the greatness of the boy who had made good with the very instruments they had condemned.

Henry Jonquil was seated in his sumptuous New York office when he heard of it. He thought the matter over carefully. New York was quite a distance from Kelceyville, but if he wasn't there to unveil his own monument, the old fozzles would probably call him nighhat. Oh, well . . .

He arrived, in his private car, at the very siding where he used to wait for the 9.37 freight to rumble by. The Mayor and the Board of Selectmen bowed and scraped and made speeches

Jonquil smiled to the crowds. He kind of liked it.

In the center of Main st. the unveiling took place. There was a small patch of green grass and in the center was a shroud of canvas. That was what hid the monument.

Henry Jonquil, blushing to his ears, made a short speech of thanks, and pulled the strings that unveiled the monument. What he saw caused him almost to faint with shock.

There was his name boldly engraved on a new water trough—for the farmers' horses! . . .

SAYRE URGES TRANSFER OF STATE PRISON

PROPOSES NEW BUILDINGS AT NORFOLK

$1,000,000 Project Is Planned Under Grant From the U. S. Fund

Abolition of Charlestown State Prison, long condemned as an unsanitary fire-trap, today was urged on the legislature's joint ways and means committee by Dr. Francis B. Sayre, state commissioner of correction. It has long been advocated by the Boston Evening American.

Dr. Sayre outlined a plan for the utilization of federal funds, made available by the National Recovery Act, for a $1,000,000 reorganization of Massachusetts' penal system.

He advocated the construction of five new dormitories at Norfolk to house 750 inmates, and a receiving station at Boston, with facilities for 150 men. The Norfolk project would cost about $975,000, the commissioner estimated.

WOULD BUILD 6 SHOPS.

Dr. Sayre also urged that six shops be built at Norfolk. While work can begin at once on the dormitories, he said that permission would have to be gained from the Legislature to move industries to the camp. Since the project is intended to create work to speed economic recovery, he felt this could be quickly obtained.

Representative Christian Herter of Boston called attention to a proviso of the federal act, under which the State is to obtain the funds, which requires that a 30-hour week be put in force on all such projects. He asked whether this would not increase Dr. Sayre's estimate of $75,000. The commissioner said that he thought it would make but little difference, and that, even if it did, now was the time to build because of the low cost of building materials.

He also indicated that some improvements should be made eventually at Concord, but submitted no plans at this time.

TO SAVE $105,000 YEARLY

Strongest argument of Dr Sayre for the project was the fact that under the new plan the State would annually save $105,000 in the administration of its penal institutions.

While he talked, other department heads were waiting to appear before the committee with plans to utilize further share of the federal allotment.

Under the National Recovery Act, Massachusetts hopes to get approximately $30,000,000 from the national government. The federal act provides that for every 30 cents provided by Washington the State must raise 70 cents. Part of this latter amount, however, may be borrowed from the government.

EX-CHAMPION'S DAUGHTER IN SWIM MEET

The old adage, "Like father, like son," is applicable to daughters and mothers too.

This is true at least in the case of 13-year-old Elinor Weene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Weene, of 92 Cross st., Somerville.

If your memory is not faulty you will recall that Mrs. Weene was formerly Miss Rose Pitnof who won world-wide fame when she swam to Boston Light from Charlestown bridge, being the first person to do so.

Now her daughter Elinor is following in mother's footsteps. Elinor is a Somerville high school sophomore and is regarded as one of the most promising swimmers in Greater Boston today. On June 17 she won first in the 220 handicap in Nautical Pool, Revere, and on February 22, first in one of the dashes at Boston Swimming Association meet in Boston Y.

ENTERS 100 YARD RACE

Elinor will compete in the 100-yard freestyle event at the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser annual swimming races for girls and women off Columbus Park beach, South Boston, Saturday afternoon, July 29. Her dad, a prominent Boston dentist, will be there to cheer her on her way to a win, as also will her mother.

Other girl stars who are scheduled to appear at the Columbus Park meet are Lillian, Irene and Margaret Davis, Medford sisters, members of a famous swimming family; Gussie Schnabel of Roxbindale, Elna Blumquist of Providence, Mary M. Doherty and her chum, Mildred McGlynn of Andover, Alice Bridges of Whitinsville, Geraldine Biesenbeck of South Boston, Rita and Arline McCarthy of Dedham.

EVERYONE INVITED

With these fine swimmers in the field the American-Advertiser races are sure to be well contested. It will be a fine show for the spectators and as usual, no admission will be charged. Everyone is invited to attend. There will be plenty of room for all.

The bigger the crowd, the better we'll like it. Plan to come and bring your friends and family. Chairman William P. Long of the Boston Park Commission and his associates are doing their utmost to make the big splash a success.

Every child should be able to swim. With this thought in mind, officials of the Boston park department have inaugurated a "learn to swim" campaign at all nine city beaches where parents may take their children for competent instruction without cost. One or more swimming instructors have been assigned to each of the city beaches for this purpose.

WEEKLY COMPETITIONS

The places where this instruction may be obtained free are the three sections of L st. baths, South Boston; Dewey Beach, Charlestown; North End Park, North End. World War Memorial Park, East Boston; Dewey Beach, Charlestown; Savin Hill, Tenean and Freeport st. beaches, Dorchester.

Beginning July 1 the city will conduct weekly swimming competitions for children 16 years of age and under, divided into seven classes. By means of a point system the best swimmers will be selected to compete in an inter-beach two-day carnival the middle of August. Five hundred smart young swimmers are expected to compete in these races and many of the best of them will participate in the American swim.

COMMODITIES LEAD STOCKS TO NEW TOPS

New York, June 26—Financial markets leaped forward today under the leadership of grains and cotton and new high prices for the past year or more were established by leading securities and most staples.

The so-called farm stocks were given a fast ride as wheat soared 7 or more cents a bushel and cotton recorded buoyant gains of +2.40 to around $3 a bale. Corn and rye stepped up along with wheat.

BUSINESS NEWS GOOD

Roseate views of acreage reduction, with fair prospects of an international agreement on this point together with crop damage reports speculative buying, covering and short covering were some of the factors credits with the upswing of staples.

At the same time the American dollar held fairly steady in foreign exchange markets, while continued goods news of business and industrial improvement continued to come from all parts of the country.

Share prices opened steady to firm this morning, following movement began in the second hour. For awhile the movement was speedy and violent and when it was over, around 5,000,000 shares. The activity quieted down, however, in later trading and most of the sharp gainers dropped back from their tops.

Case led the upturn with an extreme gain of 8 points at one point, but subsequently yielded some of this.

Others of the agricultural group up 1 to around 2 included Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Montgomery Ward, Caterpillar Tractor and Allis Chalmers.

Allied Chemical and National Distillers got around 4 each while lesser advances were registered by United Aircraft, Bethlehem Steel, American Telephone, Western Union, U S Industrial Alcohol and Crown Cork. The mile and odd were firm, but not too enthusiastic

NEW MARKET INFLUENCE

The tendency of the domestic commodity situation to usurp market leadership which has been held for some time by gyrating foreign exchanges is one of encouraging interest to traders. Various indices disclose that the level of commodity prices all of a sudden has advanced to a new high for the past 18 months or longer.

While reductions, with curtailment plans, coupled with damaging crop weather, had an important effect on the price movements in grains, the basic strength of commodities generally has been attributed to the administration's announced intention of raising prices, one way or another, so that debts can be liquidated with money of about the same value as when the obligations were contracted.

Steel production has advanced its output from 50 per cent to 51 per cent of capacity. Steel's iron and steel scrap composite index 8 cents this week to $28.83 on stronger plate prices; the finished steel composite has advanced 4 cents to $45.50 and the scrap figure is up 4 cents to $9.70

NEW TOPS SET FOR GRAINS

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—Excited trading which in volume surpassed wartimes accompanied prices that soared more than 7 cents a bushel today for wheat

Widespread conditions approaching crop failure seldom equaled in the United States were reported as a result of three weeks of abnormal heat and drouth. Approximately 150,000,000 bushels of all grains changed hands here today as prices shot skyward.

Violent fluctuations took some deliveries of wheat to within nearly a dollar a bushel of $1 a bushel, a figure that seemed impossible of realization a few months ago when wheat was worth less than half that price

In the last minute of trading, May wheat rounded 99¾ cents a bushel and closed at that figure. The wheat market as a whole closed thrilled, 6¾ to 7¾ cents above Saturday's finish, corn 2¾-3¾ up, oats 4¾-5¾ advanced, and provisions showing a rise of 7 to 45 cents.

Sensational Gains Score for Cotton

New York, June 26 (INS)—Cotton futures scored sensational gains of more than $3 a bale in the closings today, soaring beyond the previous peaks of the year to the highest level since 1931. The market opened 12 to 20 points higher, following an advance of 7 to 13 points in Liverpool, and then continued to climb in the subsequent trading. Late prices were up $3.35 to $3.56 with October up $3.55 at 10.29, December up $3.6 at 10.45 and May up $3 at 10.81.

"Pennsy's" Traffic Substantially Up

Passenger traffic on the Pennsylvania Railroad out of New York has increased substantially in the past two months and gives indication of a greater expansion in the rest of the year, states George Le Boutillier, vice-president.

GINGER ROGERS TO HEAD CAST

Bright Stars

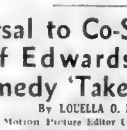
COMEDY KEYNOTE FOR KEITH HILARITY

Universal to Co-Star Her With Cliff Edwards in Musical Comedy 'Take a Chance'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, June 26—You can count on something big happening to Ginger Rogers after her splendid work in "The Gold Diggers of 1933." Trouble is, Ginger has never really had a chance out here. She has always played disagreeable roles with a negative quality. In "Gold Diggers" she comes into her own.

She has been signed by Lawrence Schwab William Rowland and Monte Brice for "Take a Chance," the musical comedy which Universal will bring to the screen. Her role is that created by June Knight on the stage, while Cliff Edwards will attempt to follow Sid Silvers, who was a riot in New York.



Louella Parsons.

"Take a Chance" went into production June 29 at the Paramount Astoria studios, one of the few pictures to be made in the East.

Another for Bing

What kept "College Humor" two weeks at the Paramount Theater here? I think that little riddle is answered without much difficulty. Bing Crosby, the crooner who croons to so many thousands of fans over the radio! The picture itself is a nice little college story, but without Bing and Burns and Allen I doubt very much if it would have hit such a high mark at the box office. Bing is being put immediately into another Paramount picture, "Cruise to Nowhere," based on an original by Walton Hall Smith. He will have with him his two side-kicks, Burns and Allen. Lewis Gensler who came out from New York, has been signed by Paramount to adapt the picture.

Stardom for Jean

A bouquet to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Unlike many of the other companies, once a young actor or actress starts under their banner they do not suddenly drop them or let another studio take advantage of their buildup. Jean Parker is certainly a M-G-M discovery. She is the little high school girl who was brought out to M-G-M after her picture had appeared in the paper with a group of other youngsters. She has been playing small parts, always with an idea that one day she would be given something really worthwhile. That day has arrived and the next time Jean Parker is seen it will be in the lead in "High School," a kid picture to be directed by Victor Fleming as soon as he finishes "Bombshell."

Snapshots of Hollywood

The "Twentieth Century" premiere at the El Capitan brought out the largest number of celebrities in months. ESTELLE TAYLOR won the palm for attracting attention; she wore a green and red plaid combination with plaid gloves to match; MISS TAYLOR was escorted by ROWLAND BROWN, who seemed to take joy in the bizarre costume and the furore that La Taylor created in her unusual costume. GENE RAYMOND escorted his mother, BRUCE CABOT, beaming on ADRIENNE AMES, worn one of those trick mens jackets that all the men are going in for this season. IRENE BARRYMORE home from a two months' holiday in New York with LIONEL at the premiere. LILYAN TASHMAN, in pale blue chiffon satin, and EDMUND LOWE with their guest, MARION SAPORTAS. JACK PERRIN escorted by ROBERT VIGNOLA. CLAUDETTE COLBERT with NORMAN FOSTER. These two seem most devoted than the husbands and wives who live together. HELEN HAYES' picture on the cover of a fan magazine used in one of the acts. A delicate compliment paid her by her husband, CHARLES MacARTHUR, co-author with BEN HECHT of "Twentieth Century". Many parties after the show. One of the largest that of MRS. AD SCHULBERG, GREGORY RATOFF and CHARLES FELDMAN, at the Vendome. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Sylvia Sidney, in playful mood, with her pet dog. She is the bright star of "Jennie Gerhardt," Dreiser story on the Metropolitan screen.

Two of the girls in uniform pretty themselves before donning the school dress. They are Hedwig Schumann and Hulda Lieder, among the many fine actresses in "Maedchen in Uniform,' at Fine Arts for fourth week.

Vigorous Drama on Modern Screen

By HARRIS MORGAN

"The Eleventh Commandment," on the new bill at the Modern as a vigorous melodrama, made human and believable by expert direction and good acting.

Its theme in parts reminds one of news stories months ago of a certain large estate; in the photoplay, the camera delves into the passing of the fortune and shows up the skeletons in the family closet. Then comes the play of emotions among claimants, and the climax has suspense and power.

Among the fine performers are Theodore von Eltz, Alan Hale, Marie Prevost, Marian Marsh and William V. Mong. George Melford directed.

Also on the bill is "Emergency Call," starring Bill Boyd.

Stage Excels With Wealth of Talent

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Hey Nonnie-nonnie and a hot-cha-cha! Ring out the wild bells, for Polly Moran is come to town! In person, this most uproarious of comediennes takes the bull by its horns and the audience by its ears, and ere she is through, one has just about laughed himself sore from overmuch rib-tickling. That about sums up the substance of Polly's appearance on the RKO B. F. Keith stage, currently.

* * *

Next to Will Mahoney, she is the finest "one man" show in or out of vaudeville. Put it this way: Will of the perpetual fall and the "xylodance" has the edge on the male gingles, and Miss Moran is the greatest of all one-woman shows. In her own strictly individualistic line, Polly has no peer; she stands alone. The closest approach is miles from her. She has the hoyse rocketing, and she is merciless. Gales of laughter fail to halt her glib tongue. She patters, she shouts, she shrieks, and the gusto is answered by audience reaction in kind.

Now any bill that vaunts Polly Moran is forthwith an all-star bill. Polly is better than any ten acts together in the business.

It is not surprising that so brilliant a humorist out of Finland overshadows the photoplay this week. Few pictures could meet the competition. In the Keith screen is "What Price Innocence?" which is up against the fact that Polly Moran has already usurped the mental faculties. The movie deals with what we may term the jazzier problems of life, and when it is over one remembers that its outstanding character is a "find": Jean Parker, possessed of striking looks and personality, and unusually capable.

The rest of the cast seem to be more or less in eclipse on perchance, the penumbra.

* * *

Miss Moran tops the line of excellent acts, all of which combine to give rich glow to the "flesh" portion of the show. The Hostmans, Hunt & Strum, always locally acclaimed, sing most agreeably; Ray Parker is an expert juggler, and Helen Greenwood, billed as "Rotary's Sweetheart," Stan Kavanaugh, Mann, Johnson & Martin, shine in succession, and Larry Flint and orchestra acquit themselves with great credit in an overture which links 1812 with 1933.

But it's Polly who takes the cracker, and you'll take away the memory of the wisest and most nonsensical of all performers. In brief, Polly sits on the top of the show world.

Films in Hurry Call to Polly

A telegram from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer today to Polly Moran upsets all her plans for stage and radio. The message is a hurry call to return to the Culver City studios next week for a role opposite Jimmy Durante in "The Hollywood Party." So next Saturday, finishing her week at Keith's, Polly starts for California, she informed us today.

* * *

She says she is "rarin' to go," because she loves the movies. Paradoxically she adds that she is broken-hearted; she hates to cancel her stage bookings and call it off since she made the radio hit of the year on the Rudy Vallee hour recently. She tells us she was scheduled also to play the Palladium in London on August 22, which Polly Moran is out now, despite her eager wish to make the Britons laugh.

For the new picture, the telegram informs her, is to be followed by her playing in "The Hollywood Revue," M-G-M's big musical production.

"I love my audience," she says. "You see, of all the ancients among vaudevillians, W. C. Fields and I are the only ones surviving. I was raised on the variety boards. Then, radio has come with alluring offers; one was to go on for the summer on the Eddie Cantor time."

We mentioned Marie Dressler, her pal on screen and in real life.

"She's great," is the response. "Never felt better. False idea about her ailing health. She has a busy schedule of work, 'Tugboat Annie,' another 'Min and Bill,' and then 'The Late Christopher Bean.' She is a veteran like myself, but where I was in vaude, Marie was in musical comedies.

Told her fans wanted to see her and Marie together again on screen.

"Oodles of mail to the studios tells the same desire. So they are going to star Marie and me in 'The Hill Billies,' in the fall," she says.

Polly is the finest interviewee we ever tackled. She has gorgeous wit and humor, plus a human and simple way of presenting things. We talked hours . . . She loves Loretta Young, who does a grand job in "Midnight Mary" . . . Bill Wellman (Brooklinе), expert director, is a close friend and much admired by Polly . . . Conrad Nagel is going to appear in stock nearby . . . Polly thinks it's in the Skowhegan, Me., theater group . . . Hobart Bosworth back on the Coast, one of the grandest figures in pictures . . . The screen's original hero, says Polly . . . What Garbo will do now that she's gotten rid of her old manager, Hopkins, is a question . . . the Greta secretiveness is publicity stuff, Polly avers . . .

Russell Mack, son of Fred of Providence, will probably direct Polly's next . . . she loves Spencer Tracy's acting . . . Clark Gable appears in too many pictures . . . they see him too much . . . Lloyd and Chaplin (thinks Polly) are right, they make their appearances rare, and preserve their public . . .

"Marion Davies is another example, one of the few among the actresses," says Polly. "This girl is one of the ablest comediennes, and her 'Peg' is one of the superior characterizations of her career, and of this year's cinema. Marion and Marie—there are two whom everybody enjoys, and love.

Polly overjoyed to get news as we talk to her, that her mother and boy Jack . . . full name, John Michael Joseph Moran . . . are at the Chicago Fair, and to meet her on her way back . . . they're to return via the Panama Canal . . . talk of many more things . . . any girl is foolish to yearn for Hollywood at this time, chances all against her . . . too much dialogue kills film . . . chief fault is poor stories, and the cycle idea that gives you a group of movies along the same line . . . and then—

"I am celebrating my birthday in Boston!"

When?

"June 28."

And what birthday?

"Just say I am 34!"

That's Polly Moran, jolliest and loyalest of friends, and premier comedienne.

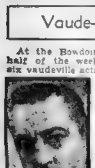
Boston Man's Story

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has purchased the motion picture rights to "Stage Mother," latest story by Bradford Ropes of Wollaston.

Ropes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes of Wollaston. His first film story, "42d Street," has proven the biggest box office hit of the year.

Vaude–Films

At the Bowdoin, for the first half of the week, is a bill of six vaudeville acts, together with two film hits.



John Barrymore

Among the vaudeville features are Jean Bedini & Co., comprising three men and a woman. They present a combination of songs, comedy talking and juggling. Another feature is Modern Varieties Mereedes, a bird novelty. Mae Wise and Annabe, Harlem steppers. One of the pictures has John Barrymore in "Reunion in Vienna."

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Down Memory Lane!

(With Bill the Oysterman)

Maybe the women today think it's sophisticated to stand up at the bar for their beer, but I remember the belles of the 1880's leaning against my father's oyster bar in all their bustled glory washing down their dozen oysters with tankards of ale. That was New York and oyster bars were as popular as speakeasies. There was Bristol's, O'Neil's, McManus', Fay's and Stills'. Ours was an open stand in the heart of the city, Wooster and W. 3rd sts., to be exact.

My father, the original Billy, was a huge, bluff Englishman with a drooping Chester Conklin mustache who was a match for anyone. The famous Broadway Central Hotel was just a few blocks away and our place was the rendezvous for any of their guests out on a sea food orgy.

Our section of town was a gay white way of a gas lit, free drinking New York and the center of the sporting crowd. Jim Fisk and Jay Gould were frequent visitors before their historic fight in the Broadway Central.

William Fox, Sol Brill and Bennie Moss were an inveterate trio and oyster fiends. Fox was still in the cloth-sponging business, but was always talking about the money he was going to make in motion pictures, though he was most always broke at that time. Fox got his break by a fluke. A cap manufacturer who held a old fire record had a loft above Fox's. A legitimate fire broke out there one night, ruining both the cap man, who had no insurance, and Fox, who was fully covered. He collected quite handsomely, enough anyway to start on his ambitious plans. My brother, Joe, who later succeeded my father as the second "Billy the Oysterman," carted Fox's first nickelodeon machine to Brooklyn.

The 1907 panic forced me into my father's business, which I had heretofore shunned preferring real estate. My father moved uptown to the new Broadway section to the opposite Bizzel-Cooper hotel and there and became the "Billy the Oysterman."

Our fame started then, somehow people used to eat more had sharper appetites, because of the liquor, I believe. It was nothing for the Gibson girls to pack away a dinner of oysters, clam chowder, lobster steak potatoes, coffee and pie.

In 1912 we moved to our present location on E. 20th st, a magnificent contrast to our 1880 basement bar. Diamond Jim Brady gave frequent parties in our upstairs dining room. Whatever may be said about his flashy getup, he was a epicure, extremely fond of the real English mutton chops, which take 40 minutes to prepare.

Gentleman Jim Corbett was always around after training. Lillian Russell brightened the place with a gay party. Evelyn Nesbit, accompanied by her attorney, sought solace in a planked steak during the Thaw trial. Bill Fallon and Gertie Vanderbilt, the present Mrs. Lawrence Lowman, were frequent diners. Irene Castle used to breeze in.

Arnold Rothstein, who was always accompanied by four men, was one of the most inoffensive persons I ever met.

I was shocked when a woman diner presumed to light a cigarette about 18 years ago, and at the risk of offending her I had to tell her to stop. A week later it seemed that every woman in the room was in league against me, for all of them were smoking. I couldn't stop them, though some of the men stalked out in disgust.

Al Smith came in each Friday for his fried oysters when he was running for governor. Weekdays Al's favorite dish was corned beef and cabbage while Mr. Smith lived in Oliver Street.

Beer hasn't brought any marked change so far. And I don't think it will. We need wine and real liquor to bring back the good old American appetite. I'm waiting patiently for that day.

Maybe not so patiently!

"Bombs" Add to Fun In Training Camp. Sharkey Ready Now

For Fast Action. Ben Leonard Thinks Champ Has Slipped.

By JACK CONWAY

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 26—I brushed aside an army of cops and detectives and landed in the heart of Jack Sharkey's training camp here.

I parked my car and looked around to see if anybody would present me with a bullet proof vest. Nobody did, and I was quite disappointed as I have been given to understand that the boys are packing guns much as schoolboys do fountain pens. Just so as to be ready in case any of the writers of the various ransom and kidnaping letters sent here put in an appearance.

MR. BOSTON

A 16-cylinder car with a Negro chauffeur drew up on the lawn in front of Gus Wilson's dining room. The entire party got out, and a young man at the camp lifted up the hood and became very active.

"Everything is okay," he cried out.

Pete Reilly, who used to manage Jack Delaney and Andre Routis, rushed after the chauffeur.

"Get your car off the lawn," ordered Reilly. "What do you think this place is, a dump? Get it off I say, and make it quick."

The chauffeur trembled under Reilly's fire. He hastened to his car and crashed his right foot against the starter.

There was a noise like a skyrocket going off, then a loud explosion inside the hood of the car. The Negro chauffeur collapsed at the wheel. He was unable to speak or move.

Sunday visitors to the camp ducked behind cars and asked what the shooting was all about, while the boys all grabbed their weapons.

* * *

"Step on the starter and get the car off the lawn," ordered the persistent Reilly. "What do I care if somebody shoots you?"

I later found out Reilly was merely having a little amusement Jack Falvey, of Stoughton, who may usually be found around Wall Street, also had a "bomb" placed under the hood of his car.

* * *

"Bombs" Are Latest Addition to Training Camps

The Reilly "Bombs" are the latest addition to the life of training camps. They are quite artistic little things. A five-inch cannon cracker is hooked up with wires which are attached to the spark plugs of a car. The minute one steps on the self starter the "bomb" is fired. The fact the explosion takes place inside the hood makes it seem all the louder.

They put one in Johnny Buckley's car the other day, and they say that when it went off Johnny even forgot to call upon the heavy artillery he has been lugging around to protect Sharkey from possible harm.

When in Chicago recently, Reilly set one of his playful "bombs" in the car of a racketeer. The fellow almost died of fright when it went off. He thought he was being rubbed out.

The knob of the door to the dining room at Gus Wilson's camp was also wired. Each person who seized the knob received a shock.

* * *

Sharkey Ready to Step Into Ring Right Now

Sharkey is ready to fight right now, and has been ordered by Johnny Buckley and Al Lacy to ease off in his training. The champion was only allowed to box three rounds. He worked two sessions with Hans Birkie and one round with Chester Mattan. He weighed 202 pounds when he finished his workout.

Sharkey will not do any more road work. He will only take short walks mornings. He will also end up his boxing today and take things easy until he enters the ring with Carnera on Thursday night.

Al Lacy tells me he believes Sharkey's trip home on Saturday to assure himself of the safety of his children was good for him. Lacy says the trip kept him out of the ring, and also gave him mental relaxation. Now that proper safeguards have been thrown around the Sharkey children the champion can devote all of his attention to getting ready for Primo Carnera.

There was an array of notables at the Sharkey camp. Not the least of these was Sam Langford, famous Boston "tar baby." Langford taught Sharkey how to use the left hook with which he hopes to stop Carnera. Sam coached Sharkey for his bout with Harry Wills, and predicted at the time that the Boston heavyweight would win. Sam is picking Sharkey to stop Carnera. The champion made the "tar baby" happy when he gave him $100.

Benny Leonard also visited the Sharkey camp. He was impressed by the champion's boxing, but is inclined to believe Jack has gone back.

Johnny Dundee also looked Sharkey over. He was enthusiastic about the showing made by the champion.

* * *

Random Shots at the Target

I talked with Henri DeGlane before I left Boston, and he told me he wanted another crack at Ed Don George . . . DeGlane asserted he had George helpless from a hammerlock and toe hold when the towel was tossed into the ring . . . He naturally felt it had been thrown by Freddy Moran, George's chief second . . . There are thousands of fans who still believe DeGlane can lick George . . . Jimmy Johnston says the Sharkey-Carnera bout is a cinch to hit $300,000 . . . The Garden turned down a bid of $18,000 for the radio rights to the fight. The bid came from one of the major automobile companies . . . The moving picture rights have been sold for $8500 . . . Up $3500 from the price paid for the Baer-Schmeling pictures.

Cards Visit Warriors at Tepee

By JOE CASHMAN

One up, to date, in their second stand against the West, our fifth-place Braves turn their attention today to the cogent Cardinals from St. Louis, rated by Bill McKechnie and a lot of other folks as the club to beat to win the National League pennant.

This unit of Top Sergeant Gabby Street's Redbird runner-ups is unique in that there's a Monday game and there's not a single doubleheader listed. Unless the weather interferes, the array will consist of three single games, starting this p. m.

It's a crucial test for both clubs. The Warriors, victors in five of their last six starts, must keep on winning to remain within hailing distance of the first division. The Cards, three games back of the league-leading Giants as a result of dropping three out of four to the last-place Phils in the past few days, can't afford to lose much more ground if they're to have a chance of climbing to the roof in New York later this week.

STREETMEN POWERFUL

Gabby Street has a powerful outfit, perhaps the most powerful he's ever had, and he's won two pennants and a world's championship in the past three years. The outfield is great, the infield great and the catching the best in the majors.

And then these pitchers. The "million dollar staff," they call it and that figure is actually conservative. Dizzy Dean, Tex Carleton, Dazzy Vance, righthanders, and Bill Hallahan, Bill Walker and Jim Mooney, southpaws, are the big six. Jess Haines, Sylvester Johnson and Jim Lindsey furnish the relief, in other words, they spend most of their time in idleness.

No other hurling staff in the loop compares with this one in either quality or quantity. If a club has a hitting weakness, the Cards have a finger to take advantage o fit. Any delivery that is thrown these days, some Redbird can throw it.

The St. Louis ace may run into trouble here, though. The Chicago Cubs have several fair tossers, but none of them could discover the natives' weakness.

Lonnie Warneke, Guy Bush and Charlie Root, the best of the Windy City moundsmen, all failed to hold the McKechnieen in check. But Tinning succeeded, but he was found for 10 hits, and his 12 to 3 victory in the first Sunday game was due more to poor Tribal pitching than to any extraordinary effectiveness on his part.

CRUZ CONQUERS

Root, given a three-run lead in the first inning of the nightcap, couldn't hold it, and the Braves won, 4 to 3. Home runs by Wally Berger, his 13th, and Pinky Whitney, made up for two of the tallies before the third inning started. Three singles put over the tieing run in the seventh. Then, in the ninth, Lee doubled, and rode home on Gyselman's single. The play at the plate was very close, and the Cubs nearly wrecked the clubhouse after the game, giving vent to their objections to Bill Klem's decision.

Maureen Smashes Westchester Mark

Rye, N. Y., June 26 (AP)—Maureen Orcutt, with a 76 broke the women's course record for Westchester C. C. as she and George Voigt defeated Helen and Jarvis Hicks in a four-ball match, one up.

The record was 77.

QUIMET OUT OF MASS. OPEN

By BILL GRIMES

Francis Ouimet, Massachusetts open champion, will not defend his state title when play begins June 28.

The Brookline veteran gives pressure of business as his reason for not competing in the tournament.

The tournament will be held at the Belmont Spring Country Club and will run for three days with the finals on June 30.

Instead of the usual letdown July 4 or to the Fourth of July, the golfers are facing another busy week, which is featured by the Mass. open championship at the Belmont Spring Country Club.

As usual there will be a number of out of state golfers seeking the flow State title. Wiffy Cox, New York; Herman Barron; the Turnesa, Joe and Mike; Tony Manero and Bobby Cruickshanks will be in action.

The N. E. P. G. A. is staging its third annual Ladies-Pro championship today at Vesper. Miss Grace Hannan and Gene Anderson, Colonial are the defending champions and favored to duplicate their 1932 triumph.

The Retail Stores Golf League will play at the Tedesco C. C. on Friday when it is on the opening day of the annual Arlington C. C. On Saturday, the Oak Hill Country Club will hold a one day open at Fitchburg.

Conflict with the state open at Belmont Spring will mora or less bury the annual Salem four-ball invitation tournament, so, a large field has entered for this four day event.

The newly organized Bench and Bar Golfing Society will stage its initial tournament at Wollaston on Friday.

Japanese Sets Swim Mark

Tokio, June 26 (AP)—Shozo Makino, Japan, betiered the world's free style record for 800 meters in 10 minutes, 8.6 seconds. The listed record is 10 15.6.

U. S. Rydermen Rally But Fail to Stave Off British Win

By LAURENCE MEIER

Southport, Eng., June 26 (INS)—Triumphing despite a sudden and much-needed spurt on the part of the American team Great Britain finished the first day's play in the Ryder cup golf tournament this afternoon, leading the United States by 2½ to 1½.

When the teams streamed out on the Southport links for the afternoon round after a morning session which had seen the American golfers paralyzed by their own mistakes and pounded down by the Britons, it looked as though England might make a clean sweep of the foursomes.

But the Americans hit their stride in the afternoon round and managed to win one match and break even on another.

DUDLEY, BURKE WIN

The American heroes of the day were Ed Dudley and Bill Burke, who managed to squeeze out a 1-hole victory over A. H. Padgham and Alf Perry of Britain.

Walter Hagen, American captain, and Gene Sarazen finished their match with Charles Whitcombe and Percy Allis all square.

Craig Wood and Paul Runyan, who in the early stages were the most promising of the American entries, went down to defeat before the brilliant play of W. H Davies and Syd Easterbrooke.

Olin Dutra and Denny Saute took the worst beating of all. Abe Mitchell and Arthur Havers, veteran Britihs professionals who play with a machine-like accuracy, defeated them 3 up and 2 to play.

HUGE GALLERY

The unexpected advances gained by the British team in the first day of play brought cheer to the hearts of the thousands of Britons in the huge gallery which followed the contests.

If left the United States with an exceedingly difficult tack. Eight singles matches are to be played tomorrow, and the Americans will be forced to show a greater brilliancy than they demonstrated today if they hope to prevent Britain from evening the score in the series.

At present, the tally is 2 to 1 in in favor of the United States. The Americans have never won the cup on British territory, nor have the British won in the United States, so today's exhibition was in keeping with tradition if not in line with advance dope.

Golf experts who followed the players around the courses agreed that the United States suffered more by its own mistakes than anything else. Hagen and Sarazen were hopelessly inept on the greens during the first 27 holes, and although they tightened up for a marvelous spurt on the last nine, there was no way of adding an additional spurt on the sourse and they had to be contentwith split honors.

Freitas Best B. C. Student-Athlete

The honor of being the best student-athlete at Boston College goes to John Freitas of Fairhaven with the announcement of the marks for the year just closed at University Heights.

Freitas garnered an average of over 90 per cent in all his studies.

HOSE, BROWNS IN CELLAR GO

Special to the Boston American

St. Louis June 26—The American League cellar is at stake in the third game of the Red Sox-Browns series here this afternoon. The visitors from Boston, in seventh place by a margin of a half game, must win or Bill Killefer's local heroes will climb out of the basement.

Manager Marty McManus, a citizen of this fair town when he isn't engaged in master minding for the Fenway flock, is relying on Gordon 'Dusty' Rhodes to keep the Bay Staters out of the cellar.

It must be that the Red Sox are a very poor Sunday club. Otherwise double defeat, 10-8, 6-4, they suffered t the hands of the Mound City boys yesterday.

Coming here after having split even in Cleveland and taken three out of five in Detroit and with a record of ten victories in their 15 previous starts, they were badly outplyed.

GRIEVE CUP WON BY M'GREGORS

The Clan McGregors added the Thomas Grieve cup to their list of honors for the year when they defeated the St. Pius eleven of Lynn, 3 to 0, in the final major soccer game of the year at Lincoln Park.

By annexing the Grieve cup the Quincy Kilties grabbed all the local honors as they won the Mayor James M. Curley cup and the Boston and District League title. The victim in the finals of all three competitions happened to be the St. Pius eleven.

In yesterday's battle the St. Pius club was badly handicapped by the absence of four stars, Fred Kennedy, Leo Kennedy, Jerry Mahoney and Teddy O'Connor.

YANKEE COURT STARS ADVANCE

Wimbledon, Eng., June 26 (AP)—The United States delegation, headed by the defending champion, lanky Ellsworth Vines, had little difficulty beating moderate international opposition as the historic Wimbledon tennis championships got under way today.

Vines never had to loose his blazing cannonball serve nor really exert himself in his general pay to win his first round match from G. R. D. Meredith of England in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2, 6—0.

Cliff Sutter, former intercollegiate champion from Tulane, worried at first by the slow courts, beat E lton of Japan, 6—2, 8—6, 6—1.

Two former intercollegiate aces now attending Oxford and Cambridge, respectively, Clayton Lee Burwell of Sewanee and David Jones, from Columbia, swept easily through the first round Burwell beat the unranked German veteran, Hans Kleinschroth, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2, while Jones, his powerful service effective even on the slow surface, disposed of the British Davis Cup veteran, J D P Wheatley, 6—4, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

While the stars of other nations advanced without any major upset, Jack Crawford, the sensational young Australian who recently conquered Henri Cochet in straight sets, had a bitter struggle with Enrique Maier tall Spaniard, before winning five sets, 7—5, 6—4, 2—6, 3—6, 6—4.

W. L. Bresse, former Harvard player, defeated H. K. Lester, of England, in four sets that took two hours and 20 minutes to play, 3—6, 8—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Seedlings Advance at Longwood

Play in the Massachusetts state junior tennis championships for young girl tennis players reached the quarter final round today.

Eleanor Ciocone, seeded No. 1, defeated Elizabeth Cunningham, 6—1, 6—0. Virginia Wright, seeded No. 2, defeated Harriet Cole, 6—4, 6—4; Katherine Gilbert, seeded No. 3, defeated Ann Faiiazi, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3, and Mary Glover, seeded No. 4, defeated Genevieve MacDonald, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Other winners were Ruth Martin, who defeated Elizabeth Wright in a long match, 9—7, 7—6, and Ruth Carter, who won over Mary Doehler, 6—2, 6—3.

Harriet Gilkington defeated Mary Rice, 6—3, 6—2. Carolina Evarts won by default from Phyllis Blodget, and Eleanor Hardiman defeated Harriet Miller, 6—1, 6—0.

Helen Eyre won by default over Patricia Phelan, and Nancy Ware defeated Alice Lyman, 6—4, 6—7, 6—4. Barbara Madden defeated Nora MacDonald, 6—4, 7—5. Jane Swift won over Grance Kelley, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3.

Playing for a semi-final position, Ruth Bernhard defeated Betty Allen, 7—5, 7—5.

Daddy, what is an optimist?

AN OPTIMIST, Young Fellow, is a man who thinks he is getting a ten-cent smoke for a nickel — UNLESS it happens to be a Girard . . . which is really a ten-cent cigar at a nickel. It was ALWAYS a ten-center; not a nickel cigar raised during the boom and then cut back to its original price. The makers of Girard have bought enough of this ten-cent-quality tobacco to give you this fine smoke at a saving. They guarantee it to be ten-cent quality. Only imported filler—no domestic. Fill your fist with Girards at the present price of 5c straight.

$25,000 STAKE IS PLANNED FOR ROCKINGHAM

LADINO CHOICE IN HEADLINE EVENT TODAY

By SAM COHEN

Rockingham Race Track, Salem, N. H., June 26—In event of the success the Rockingham meeting has had here, Promoter Lou Smith said today that he will make every effort to arrange a race for the present meeting that will include some horses of national fame, by offering a $25,000 stake.

"I have always maintained that this part of the country was one of the best in the world for horse racing," Smith said here as he marvelled at a crowd of over 5000 which visited the track yesterday afternoon.

Today Rockingham swings into its fifth day of racing after four of the most successful days that ever marked the opening of a new track. The $143,314 total was handled in the mutuel windows Saturday is believed to be a record for the opening of a new track.

The Manchester Handicap, closing dash, carded today, has attracted six of the best in the big stake event so far this week today.

Ladino owned by Orr Stark and trained by P. C. Orr, tops the entry list for the stake today, but there will be plenty of competition with Mr. Kenlee's Fair an Edward colt standing out as one of contender.

Others expected to face the barrier are Mrs. H. McCallen's Bay M. Lowenstein's Ms. Connecticut and other dangerous contender Mrs. Olive Cutler's Dewsanee and Mrs. M. Colford's Mr. Dutchess.

Tom Thorp, presiding Steward will hand down his ruling on Jack Collins' Miss McC. as a horse which finished last on five days after finishing first two days previous. The officials have investigated the past performances of the horse and seem to feel that it was a mere slump of the horse rather than outside influence of betting maneuvering that was responsible for Jack Collins' poor showing in his second race here.

Big Stake Saturday

The big stake of the week will take place on Saturday. The Settlement Handicap, a $1,000 event over the seven furlongs route for three-year olds and upward will top the meeting and is sure to attract a big entry list. Then there will be the accompanying feature, the Salem Cup, a running handicap for $1000 over the five and sixteenth route.

Mickey Brooks, the boy who can pick them as nicely as anybody was lost for Washington Saturday's long shot, and then tried to steer us on Paddock, which won the next race and paid $23.30 for $5 straight bet here. Washout paid $6.80.

New Starting Gate

Vincent Treanor, one of the officials at the Rockingham track, says the new Bahr starting gate will be available tomorrow. This should be welcomed by starter Jim Milton, who has been having much difficulty with the method used at the track now.

Worcester Splits With Lowell Nine

Lowell, June 26 (AP)—Worcester and Lowell divided an N. E. loop doubleheader, the visitors taking the first game, 8 to 2, and Lowell the second, 7 to .

Taunton, June 26 (AP)—Taunton took a double-header from Lawrence, 5 to 1 and 6 to 3.

New Bedford, June 26 (AP)—New Bedford took a pair of 5 to 3 slugfest from Nashua, the first game of their doubleheader and then lost the visitors, 4 to 1 in the second game.

Allen Roughs Ump; Faces Long Rest

Detroit, June 26 (AP)—Johnny Allen, starting New Yorker pitcher in the first game of a Tigers-Yankees double-header, was fined for several days of resting, and for pushing Umpire Hubbard in the fifth inning after receiving decisions had gone against the Yanks.

Only Lou Gehrig's quick work in catching the fuming arms of Allen saved Hildebrand from a few punches.

Japanese Prince in Schools' Golf

Sixteen-in Corn, June 26 (AP)—Qua fifteen rounds of one to na ment of the eastern championship golf association opened today on the Greenbrook Country Club course with a field of 80 golfers selected from eastern districts.

Individual honors included Prince Fumitaka Konoye of the Japanese Imperial family.

The schools leading Andover Groton, Choate, Kent, Deerfield Academy, Cambridge Latin and Exeter.

Douthit Ridden

A college cheering section couldn't have done a prettier job than the bleacher fans did in handing Taylor Douthit, Cubs' leftfielder, a good-natured joshing for his failure at the plate, in both Wrigley Sunday games. The Redbirds fanned four times. After each failure the gang would arise, cheer and wave handkerchiefs. Before the day was over, more than 5000 were taking part in the act. Taylor, he said, entered into the spirit of the thing by clapping and booing after each outburst.

TITLE SWIM AT NAUTICAL POOL

The Nautical Pool at Revere, scene of the opening meet of the outdoor season, is to hold another on the night of July Fourth under the auspices of the Boston Swimming Association. Included in the program are four championships. There will be the senior 440-yard free style and junior 100-meter free style for the men and the senior 100-meter free style and junior 220-yard free style for the women.

In addition to the title events the natatoria will also have an opportunity to enter two other events, 100-meter back stroke scratch and 50-meter free style handicap, while the naiads will have a 100-meter breast stroke and 50-meter free style handicap events. The men will also be invited diving for the men.

Warneke Wrecks Heater After Loss

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs had better score a substantial number of runs the next time Lonnie Warneke pitches, or the club management may have to pay heavy property damage.

After losing a 2 to 1 decision to Boston Saturday Warneke stormed into the clubhouse, seized a bat and destroyed a heating apparatus. The Braves management billed the Cubs for $25.

When the young Arkansan, who last year led the National League in pitching accomplishments, finished with the heater, he ruined all his mates' straw hats.

Warneke, who lost only six games while winning 22 last year, already has lost seven this season, four of them in a row. His last five defeats have been by scores of 1 to 0, 2 to 1, 2 to 1, 2 to 0 and 2 to 1.

Owens Declines to Race Ralph Metcalfe

Cleveland, June 26 (INS)—Jesse Owens, sensational high school sprint star of Cleveland, has decided to call off the scheduled "race of the century" with Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette University ashman, which was to have been held in Chicago on July 1.

In announcing Owens' decision not to enter the race, Charles Riley, coach of the Negro flash, asserted today that he feared the proposed contest to determine the "world's fastest human" would be much of a strain for the young Clevelander.

WEST ROXBURY CITY LEAGUE NINES LEAD

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

With Mark McComiskey, the Lawrence youngster whom the Red Sox gave a trial in the South, last Spring, in the box the Rosebuds chalked up another victory increasing their lead to three games in the East Division of the Boston City League. McComiskey was in great form, giving St. Thomas club a nice coat of whitewash and yielding only four scattered hits.

A peculiar angle of the City League is that another team from the West Roxbury section, the Roslindales, is leading the West Division of the City League.

Both Rosebuds and Roslindales swing into action again tonight. The Rosebuds play the Mulvey's at Marcella Playground and Roslindale tackles St. Catherines on Fallon Field.

C. M. A. C. in Lead

This is the final week of the first half of the Boston Twilight League race. It finds the galloping C. M. A. C. aggregation which is riding rough shod over all opposition in the playoffs. The Sheridans of Watertown and Malden still are fighting for a position in the playoff. Their duel will be resumed tomorrow night.

Concannons Slugging

With Dan hitting .406, Larry thumping .391 and Paul whanging the apple for an average of .388 it looks as if the Concannons are the greatest sluggers in captivity. They certainly are making their name a big one in local sandlot history.

Today is an off day in the New England League with no games scheduled. The six teams will play single games from tomorrow on until Sunday when double headers will be on tap at Worcester, Nashua and Lawrence.

CHAMP UNDER GUARD

KIDNAP PLOT ON EX-GOB IS FEARED

By JACK CONWAY

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 26—Jack Sharkey's training camp here is like an armed camp as the champion prepares to finish training for the 15-round title battle with Primo Carnera, which will be held at the Garden Bowl in Long Island on Thursday night.

Johnny Broderick, crack detective of the New York police force, is in charge of a detail of picked men, who will guard the champion and Mrs. Sharkey during their stay here and in New York.

State troopers patrolled the camp during the night. Nobody was allowed to enter the place. One trooper, with gun drawn, stood outside of the Sharkey bungalow where the champion, Mrs. Sharkey, Johnny Buckley and Mrs. Buckley are quartered.

SHARKEY THREATENED

The detectives are trying to run down the gang which has been sending ransom letters to Sharkey.

"There is a ring of snatchers now operating around New York," Detective Broderick said. "Nobody with money is safe. They have tried to get ransom money from the Vanderbilts and other prominent families. I have been in charge of the investigations.

"I have instructed my men to use rough tactics if they catch up with these fellows who have been threatening Sharkey and the members of his family."

Broderick is also investigating a rumor from Boston to the effect Sharkey and Buckley have been placed on the "spot" by a gang of extortionists. Sharkey and Buckley have both been given permission by the New York police to carry guns for their protection and have been told to use them if anybody threatens to "snatch" either of them.

CHAMP TO BE GUARDED

Sharkey told me today that his only concern has been for the safety of his children and Mrs. Sharkey.

"I would like to catch up with one of those birds who wrote the ransom letters," said the champion. "I wouldn't use a gun on him either. But I'd give him an even more artistic licking than I plan to hand Carnera on Thursday night."

Arrangements have been made for a motorcycle escort when Sharkey leaves camp. His car will follow that of Johnny Broderick, while another car, loaded with detectives, will be back of the champion's auto.

Greentrees Take Cup

Westbury, N. Y., June 26 (AP)—John Hay Whitney's Greentree polo four captured the Westbury Challenge Cup, defeating the Meadow Brook Ramblers, 8-6. Tommy Hitchcock scored four of the winners' goals.

ACER IS FIRST TO ENTER 1933 GOLF TEST

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Edwin H. Place, Jr., of West Newton was the first to enter the Boston Evening American 1933 hole-in-one tournament, in which the experts and dubs alike start blasting away at the specially-erected 315-yard hole at Franklin Park on July 10.

Written on the entry blank, in answer to the question, "Have you ever made a hole-in-one?" is the word "yes." Yet, among the hundreds of other entries which have followed that of Place are a few others who own up that they have felt the thrill of an "ace."

1700 TRIED IN VAIN TO ACE

But in the 1932 Boston Evening American hole-in-one tournament, 1700 teed off with not one of the number making good. And it is generally agreed that holes-in-one are the result of luck, rather than skill.

Which proves that you might as well get in the tournament and try to walk off with one of the valuable prizes which will be offered. In this you are infinitely with what it is all about, here is the story:

The Boston Evening American is conducting its second annual hole-in-one tournament. It will start at a specially constructed hole at Franklin Park, just off the Scarboro course, on July 10. It will continue until all who have entered have had a chance to shoot five balls.

18 YEARS MINIMUM AGE

Nobody who has not reached his or her 18th birthday may enter. There is no entrance fee. If no one should make a hole-in-one the nearest to the cup will get the awards.

Send your entry in and write your name and address plainly. The entry blank will be found on this page. Also state your time preference and then the Golf Editor will try his utmost to plan you within the hours best suited to your convenience.

Your entry blank should be mailed to the Golf Editor, Boston Evening American 5 Winthrop sq. Further details of the tournament will be published daily.

Lott Trips Parker; Pair Try Riding

River Forest, Ill., June 26 (AP)—George Lott, Jr., of Chicago, took the Western singles championship away from Frankie Parker of Milwaukee, in a bitterly contested match, 6-3, 7-5, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

The crowd of about 1500 spectators saw something besides tennis. Starting with the second set, the players began to work on each other's nerves.

Several times as Parker took his position, Lott walked off for a drink of water. When he returned, Parker, playing in white knickers, would sit down on the ground to rest.

Paced Race on Bike Slate Wednesday

Manager Lou Kali of the new Revere Velodrome will stage his second bike race Wednesday with a 25-mile international event behind the motors as the feature. Five riders are to race. Already signed are Victor Hopilos, Jack Sheehan and Al Crossley of New Bedford.

Papianos Battles Laditzi Thursday

Leo Papianos will return to the Arena wrestling wars Thursday night when he collides with Rudy Laditzi in the semifinal bout of Steve McPherson's weekly carnival. There will be 10 other bouts.

Vaughan on Spree

New York, June 26 (INS)—Floyd Vaughan, Pittsburgh baseball star, rapped out seven consecutive hits in the Brooklyn series here. The collection consisted of a homer, two triples, a double and three singles.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Francis Ouimet returned from the Lake Sunapee C. C. four ball invitation this morning. It is questionable if he will defend his state open title at Belmont Spring. With business on the upward trend, Francis does not feel that he can afford more time for golf after last week's two-day vacation at Sunapee.

From a professional's viewpoint, the absence of Ouimet is okeh, for Francis has and still can spin around Belmont in par and sub par figures. But, even if Ouimet does not put in an appearance, the pros still have Jesse P. Guilford to contend with, much as they dislike admitting that any amateur has a chance to outscore them.

Guilford Threat

Belmont Spring is a long, rugged course and therefore built for Guilford. Should the going be heavy, the Siege Gun will be right in his element.

Regardless of weather conditions, there should be a large field at Wellaston on Friday when the first tournament of the Bench and Bar Golfing Society is started. Judge Joseph W. Monahan is the outstanding golfer among the jurists, but there are unfamiliar numbers of the bar who hold high rank among the niblick wielders.

The Retail Stores Golf League holds its field day at the Winchester Country Club on July 14, at which time the Milton Cup, emblematic of the four-ball championship, will be presented.

If Art Ross's efforts bear fruit, there will be another record breaking field at Marshfield for the open tournament July 7 and 8. Most of the low handicap players will participate in the hopes of winning the Marshfield trophy, now in the possession of Bill Blaney, Brae Burn.

Crowley Set for Open

It is almost an even bet that Bobby Crowley, Norfolk, will finish in the money during the state open championship at Belmont Spring. Crowley is one of the steadiest professionals in the game and one that he has more distance will surprise some of the boys.

Any open tournament player who is anxious to play a real championship layout should make it a point to enter the one-day Oak Hill C. C. event next Saturday.

Little do the Retail Stores Golf League players realize the golf treat in store for them next Friday when the four ball teams gather at the Tedesco Country Club.

Golf Schedule

Today

Ladies—Pro championship at Vesper.

Tidball Top Seeded Collegian Netman

Haverford, Pa., June 26 (AP)—Top-seeded, Jack Tidball, of U. C. L. A., led a field of 97 net stars, representing 44 colleges, into a week's play for intercollegiate tennis championship at Merion Cricket Club today.

Cliff Sutter of Tulane, titlist in 1930 and winner of the tourney last year, leaves the crown undefended.

GEORGE HEARST WED IN RANCH CEREMONY

Hearst Ranch, San Simeon, Cal., June 26 (US)—George Hearst, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, and Mrs. Lorna Velie, of Beverly Hills, were married here yesterday afternoon.

The wedding took place in the large assembly room of the castle at La Cuesta Encantado, the beautiful estate of the bridegroom's father, before an altar erected at the south end of the room, which was banked with roses and gardenias, and flanked with old Spanish torcheres that illuminated the walls lined with rare tapestries above beautifully carved Gothic stalls.

Rev. Harold E. Baker, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in San Luis Obispo, performed the ceremony.

Gov. James Rolph, Jr., an old friend of the young couple, gave the bride away. He flew up here this morning from Los Angeles in a specially provided plane. Charles H. Mayer, of San Francisco, was best man and Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, of Beverly Hills, matron of honor.

The bride wore a gown of blue organza and a hat of the same material with a small tulle veil and shoes of blue to match. Her flowers were a bouquet of white gardenias.

Mrs. Williams' gown was of peach organza. She also wore a velvet hat of the same hue with brown bows, and brown accessories. Her arms was a bouquet of talisman roses. After the wedding ceremony, 60 guests sat down to dinner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Powell Pratt of Bremerton, Washington.

George Hearst, now in charge of the radio facilities and development of the Hearst newspapers and affiliated organizations, is a member of Gov. Rolph's staff, and commodore of the California naval militia.

Honeymoon plans include a motor trip through the northwest and Canadian lakes.

JEWRY HONORS GOV. LEHMAN

In recognition of his services in Jewish affairs, Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York was elected honorary chairman of the National Young Judea at the silver jubilee convention banquet at Sharon last night.

David Levine, of New York, was elected president for the coming year. Other officers included: Lawrence Mosenthal, of Brooklyn Polish of Cincinnati, Ohio; Max Cuba of Atlanta, Ga., and Frank H. Rosenthal, of Boston, all vice-presidents; Rachile Srolovitz, of New York, secretary, and Louis P. Rocker of New York, treasurer.

Emanuel Neumann, leader in American Zionism movement, was introduced as guest speaker. He emphasized the important part played by Jewish youth through the ages, and stressed the need for enthusiasm and intellectual grasp of the problem facing world Jewry today.

Val Picinich Back Under Big Tent

New York, June 26 (INS)—Tom Padden, second-string catcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today had been sent to the Albany International League club on a 48-hour recall option. He was farmed out to make room for Val Picinich, veteran backstop, who made his debut with the Bucs yesterday.

Al Stillman Signs to Fight Shucco

New York, June 26 (INS)—Al Stillman, St. Louis light-heavyweight, will meet Tony Shucco, of Boston, in the six-round semi-final bout on the Sharkey-Carnera fight program here Thursday night.

One Bright Fact Stands

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Investigations are simmering down and the midgets can take a rest.

They taught us one thing. Put everything in your wife's name, and don't let her change it.

Public seemed to be delighted at the sight of the lambs chasing the wolves past the judge's stand.

When big men go on trial it almost makes jury duty popular. However, it is all over for the summer and nobody seems to have been badly shell shocked.

We don't know the whats from the wherefore of legal procedure. We do not know whether right is triumphed or whether the transgressor has planted his banners in the middle of the corn field.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

Copyright, 1933, for the Boston Evening American

Dispatch says the financing of 150,000 marriages in the coming year is part of Chancellor Hitler's plan for Germany.

It may make him popular for a while. But what of tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow?

But maybe he IS looking to the future, and plans, at the next election, to make a clean sweep by promising to finance 150,000 divorces.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 75,000

MONDAY, JUNE 26, 1933

Your Ideas Are Wanted

$75,000,000 for Public Works in Mass.

A very large sum of money, possibly as much as $75,000,000, will be made available for the national and State public works program in Massachusetts.

You know, of course, that the purpose of this program is to put idle men to work upon constructive enterprises and thus to promote economic recovery.

This program will do much to modernize the public plant of the State. Highways will be constructed. Public buildings will be erected. Swamps and lowlands will be drained. Congested tenement districts will be obliterated in favor of approved housing conditions.

The public works to be undertaken must be in the public interest. Public convenience and necessity must be considered. The projects should be self-liquidating, when possible.

You have read in these columns from time to time the definite recommendations for some of these projects.

The death-trap Fore River Bridge at Quincy should be abolished and in its place should be erected a modern span-bridge that will promote public safety and convenience.

The archaic and monstrous Charlestown State Prison should be abolished and in its place the Suffolk Prison Colony should be enlarged, with none of the insanitary and unmoral conditions which disgrace the penal system of Massachusetts.

Mayor Curley's idea of a prada in the West or North End as a substitute for the tenement area should receive the most cordial consideration.

There should be an arterial highway to the north and west of Boston, affording spacious and convenient entrance into the Daniel Webster highway of New Hampshire.

The Boston Evening American states the above as some fine examples of the improvements that can be effected for benefit of the public as a whole. These are merely stated as examples, however, without attempting to enforce its opinion upon the public judgment.

You are the people of Massachusetts. You are the ones whose convenience and security are to be satisfied. You are the ones who will pay the bill eventually.

You have your own judgment in the matter. Possibly you approve the projects above stated. If so, write to your Governor and persuade him in favor of these projects. Help him to form his opinion in the matter by the evidence you can supply him in behalf of the projects.

Perhaps you have some project in your own mind much more important to the public welfare than any herein stated as examples of what can be accomplished. If so, write your Governor and persuade him in favor of the project which is dominant in your opinion. Help him to a favorable judgment by an adequate statement of the facts that impress you.

We are all in the same boat. Our goal is the identical one of the greatest good for the greatest number. Let us all be reliable and enthusiastic oarsmen and do our part to keep on the sure route to prosperity and general good.

Welcome, Rotarians!

Boston Wishes You a Great Session

The Rotarians of the world are now holding their international convention in the city of Boston.

What wonderful progress they have made as a social institution!

It was only twenty-eight years ago that Gus Loehr, a mine operator; Sylvester Schiele, a coal merchant; Paul Harris, a lawyer, and Hiram Shorey, a tailor, met in Schiele's office in Chicago, and agreed to the simple social compact to meet with each other often for their mutual betterment. They selected the name Rotary because of their plan to rotate—to meet successively in the office of each other.

Today the Rotari[illegible] are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. There are [illegible]12,000 delegates and visitors here for the convention. [illegible]wome from forty countries around the globe; the sun ne[illegible]ets upon Rotary.

Presumably they h[illegible]kept their original ideal intact. They devote themselves to t[illegible]nprovement of the lot of their fel[illegible]w-man. You will find [illegible]he country the schools organized by them for the welfare [illegible]oys. In another you will come across the hospitals erected [illegible]maintained by them to relieve distress. You know of their ge[illegible]ous donations to relieve famine, or the victims of earthquake and other catastrophes the world over. You observe them as a whole to be a happy, amiable organization of men, exuding good cheer and happiness.

Boston should treat them with handsome hospitality. Their eminence and record command it. Boston also owes it to herself to maintain her own record as the great convention center of the world.

Out of the Doldrums

'New Deal' Is Working

Last year the country was sadly disappointed when certain indications of an upturn in business and employment proved illusory. Farm prices for live stock went up, only to fall off again. Slight gains in employment were more than offset by subsequent slumps, with unemployment reaching its all-time peak as recently as February of this year.

With that experience in mind present trends may be viewed with caution in some quarters. Yet when the new data are examined closely there can be no denying that the last two months have brought substantial and significant gains.

The American Federation of Labor reports that 1,629,000 workers have found jobs since the end of March, and the number has been steadily mounting in June.

Simultaneously the Internal Revenue Bureau finds evidence of trade revival in Federal tax returns. Miscellaneous taxes—accruing directly from business transactions—established a peace-time "record high" for May, when receipts climbed to $99,066,122, as against only $37,689,032 in May of last year.

Of the new total $11,576,901 was new revenue from 3.2 beverages. But with this item subtracted there remains a total of $87,489,221 derived from miscellaneous business—more than twice the figure for May, 1932.

Unquestionably the policies of the Roosevelt Administration have been a prime impulse in this turn toward economic recovery.

This is all to the good. Everything considered, the "New Deal" seems to be working beneficently.

Let business and the public have confidence, keep cool—and go ahead.

NEW YORK, June 26—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and a knifey letter from Gordon Sinclair the pampheteer, who is foot-loose in India again and so driving with the Will H. Hays and my wife to Westchester and breakfasting at the Stage Coach Inn, being served by waiters in periwigs and knee breeches.

Near slumbering Tarrytown was an old-time horse sale we stopped to watch. It was a throw-back to the Saturday sales in our town. I thought the motor age vanquished the horse dealers of another era, but they were there, prodding flanks, feeling hocks and running sensitive fingers over withers. One expert referred disparagingly to a "wind sucker" and a "roarer" and another animal received a professional sniff for "eatin' her beddin'."

No gourmet—perhaps gourmand is more descriptive—has ever touched the appetite of Diamond Jim Brady in the history of the town's gastronomics of the past two decades. They were telling of his yearly visit to Ben Riley's, where jumbo frog legs are the piece de resistance. Brady, upon such occasions, would order a triple portion with an empty plate on each side. Then with both hands, piston-like, he would gorge the huge pile, tossing the bones into empty plates.

News drifts from far away Borneo of the hair-breadth escape of the novelist Somerset Maugham in an attack of a hamadryad, the king cobra, near Sandakan. This is the only snake attacking man on sight. Maugham left a dinner party for a turn with a steamship captain before retiring, when the reptile made for him. The snake was killed by the captain with the only walking stick in Borneo—Maugham's cane, a gift from Arnold Bennett.

The super thrill of a movie, filmed in Borneo, incidentally, is a python attacking a native, climaxing in a hair-raising crushing scene. Maybe it isn't cricket to tell—I'm not sorry to jungle etiquette—but there are non-visible wires on the snake's head and tail. When the pressure get too strong, coolies pull and ease off constrictions.

Gene Crawley has a worlding friend who, having misplaced a fortune away, is touched by the horrors now and then. The other afternoon little green - whiskered men on velocipedes began tumming out of the gutter at him and he fled home in the nearest taxi to calm himself. When he got into his flat he thought he saw smoke curling from a laundry shute and opened the door to see, A bonfire of flame burst out. He quickly slammed and locked the door and sat down to read a novel and compose himself. "Mustn't see that sort of thing. Silly. Have to get frayed nerves under control," he murmured. Ten minutes later firemen were carrying him down a jolly old extension ladder, feet-up!

Just Folks

Picnics in the Parks

I see the happy families round the tables in the park.
The supper on the table and the children all aglow,
And driving by the roadside I am tempted to remark
It is good for making merry there is such a place to go.

For the rooms men build are stifling and with all a woman's care
In summer time a tenement is dreary at the best,
But the grass is cool to walk on and a park has space to spare,
And to see his children happy puts the mind of man at rest.

The trees look down upon them in a friendly sort of way,
Uncounted feathered warblers sing a chorus as they eat,
And the Lord must smile to see them in the lovely parks at play
Instead of being prisoned in some crowded city street.

Questionnaire for Parents

ARE YOU training your youngsters to think for themselves?

Or do you insist on doing their thinking for them?

Do you make them accept your decisions and judgments?

If so, what's your motive?

Do you do this because you fear they'll come to some harm?

Or because you don't want to be bothered by their muddlings and fumblings?

Or because you get a bang out of playing God?

Elsie Robinson

And if you do think for your children, just where do you get of right and wrong?

How come YOUR OWN ideas of right and wrong?

Do you get them out of your own mind?

Do you base them on your own experience?

Do you face life-as-is, frankly and fearlessly, and draw your own conclusions.

Do you do things yourself because you've decided they are good and right, regardless of the neighbors' opinions?

Or do you trim and twist your own notions, for fear of "what people will say"?

Do you feel that's a true test for behavior?

And do you insist that your children shall do so, and feel likewise?

So then, what.

Now that you children are in Hi, how's your system working out?

Are they rounding into reliable, self-respecting young men and women?

Are they meeting life strongly and sanely?

Are they facing our new problems with brave, well-balanced reasoning?

And keeping their heads cool in the midst of this chaos?

Or are they going hay wire?

Yielding to every temptation that comes along?

Clutching avidly at every new sensation regardless of it. value?

And do they laugh when you warn them "what people will say"?

Do they wave your opinions aside—tell you you "won't understand"—that you're "behind the times"?

And then proceed to raise Cain regardless?

Is that what's happening?

And, if it is, are you surprised, shocked and furious, broken-hearted and filled with self-pity?

But why should you be?

Why should you be surprised because they don't know the difference between right and wrong?

Why should you be shocked because they can't pick "the fine things" of life, but prefer the sensational and shoddy?

Did you ever give them a chance to learn the difference between right and wrong by making them, when they were little, suffer the consequences of wrong decisions?

Did you ever help them choose the "fine things of life," or did you insist that they follow the conventional pattern, whether or not it seemed right and fine to them?

And if you insisted that they follow patterns, why should you be so amazed because they are now following the patterns of their wild young contemporaries, instead of doing their own independent thinking?

Aren't your children doing exactly what you prepared them to do?

You were a copy-cat in safer, simpler times. weren't you?

Aren't they just copy-catting, as you taught them to do, in these more dangerous times?

And why should you be filled with self-pity because your children now reject your ideas and say you're behind the times?

Were those ideas ever YOUR ideas?

Did you ever dare to do any real thinking for yourself?

Have you made any real effort to keep up with the times?

In short—isn't this what you asked for?

If you wouldn't keep up with life, why should you expect life to loiter along with you?

If you wouldn't teach your children to stand on their own feet, why should you rave when they wobble?

Human Side of the News

London Now News Capital of the World—Weird Fogs of Ancient City

—By Edwin C. Hill—

Now that Congress has gone home and the President is resting up from toil that makes the labors of Hercules seem like a round of clock golf, London becomes the news capital of the world. Black men, brown men, yellow men and white men, representing 66 nations, are threshing out the problems that sorely vex the world.

Always a fascinating city, London Town finds itself the center today of the hopes of humanity. It is difficult to think of a great city which, of its own suggestion thrown more arresting pictures upon the screen memory. And of all the pictures of London, this writer likes best to think of the old city as it lies blanketed by fog—one of those all-enveloping, all-embracing North Sea fogs—which makes all cats gray and all human strange wraiths from the unknown and the unpredictable.

If you have ever been caught out in a real London fog, a regular "London's particular," you have had one of the weirdest experiences known to man. You found yourself in a mysterious and fantastic world; a world as unreal as a dream, shot through with nightmare; a world of ghosts and baffling whispers and murmure. A great London editor, Muirhead Bone, has described a London fog in that delightful work of his called "London Perambulator." It arrives, says Editor Bone, "like something young, delicate and pinyful. As charming for a little while as a young pig."

You are aware, in Trafalgar sq or Piccadilly or on the Embankment, of a delicate mist, faint and volatile, drifting like idle cigarette smoke in the currents of air. But presently, as if by magic, it becomes an overwhelming monster destroying the world you are familiar with and creating a wanton, monstrous, grotesque world of its own. You grope your fearful way along a wall or, seized with a strange terror of movement, stand transfixed at a corner. The voices that come to you—voices of bus men and taxi drivers and bobbies—take on a rounder heartiness than ever they have in the lost sunshine. Policemen loom up out of nowhere, like incredible giants.

A spirit of misrule is abroad, as if all of the hobgoblins and pixies of Halloween were at their pranks and mischief. Newsboys play tricks and cry news that never occurred on land or sea or in the air above. Sober citizens find themselves in public houses, hobnobbing at the bar with queer fish from the great pool of London's East Side. Strange companionships are formed and strange friendships made.

Dark deeds are done that never see the light. Judges and prisoners on bail lose their way. People turn up at the wrong theaters. Ambulances speeding to accidents get quite lost. Cats come out into the street and pursue their vendettas as if it were night.

In private houses people light up their rooms for cheerfulness against the all-pervading yellow murk that blurs the city. You glance into windows and see lit interiors, with figures precisely like stage scenes framed in black. You can study the tasted and fashions of a past century in old mantel pieces and modellings, as if you were strolling through the British Museum or a gallery of antiquities. Busses appear out of nowhere and pass in weird procession, huddling close for comfort and staggering on into the mystery.

It is all like something from the brush of Gustave Dore, a phantasmagoria of djinns and mumbling lost spirits. The long dead past has a trick of escaping the old and living again before your eyes. A great London editor said to me:

"The oddest sight almost that ever came before my eyes was one of those strange pictures of the fog. I was maroonedly appalled, peering for some landmark to help me on my way, when out of nowhere, in the general mystery, came a glare of lanthorn and a body of man. The torches were carried by liveried footmen and policemen. On came the group, slow-paced, the flare of the torches sending weird gleams through the enveloping gloom.

"They passed close by," said Muirhead Bone, "and in the brief illumination the torches I saw, in the center of the group, a portly gentleman with a full, neat beard, perfectly backed by an Inverness cape. It was Edward the Seventh, king of England, making his way home with his gentlemen to Buckingham Palace, guided by linkmen and torchbearers, perhaps, as his Stuart ancestor wended home through the fogs of three hundred years ago."

Our Merchant Marine

U. S. Must Keep Right to Maintain It

Before the World Economic Conference had been in session a week, the British Government, on behalf of British shipping interests, opened its insidious attack upon the American merchant marine.

In the course of his address to the Conference at one of its first sessions, Mr. Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, served notice of the intention of the British delegation to make "a determined effort" to bring about "the reduction and the eventual abolition of export and shipping subsidies by international agreement."

In this onslaught upon the American merchant marine, British diplomacy is maneuvering to obtain the assistance of Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Holland and, if possible, Germany and France.

Against this aggregation of foreign shipping interests, which have been built up by American patronage and the backing of their own governments and peoples, the United States can count upon the co-operation of only Italy and Japan.

What is the Government at Washington going to do about it?

What member of the American delegation to the London Conference is qualified to speak for the American merchant marine and organize in its defense?

Before the American delegation to the London Conference was appointed, the Hearst newspapers urged that its membership include Admiral Hutchinson I. Cone, the able Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, or some other American equally competent to present the case for the American merchant marine.

The promptness with which the British Government and its European allies have challenged the right of the American people to provide and maintain an adequate merchant marine proves that the American delegation has a fight on its hands that must be given expert leadership if America's case is to be fairly presented.

It is not too late for the Department of State to dispatch Admiral Cone to London to take up the British challenge. Until he can get there, the American delegation should refuse to enter into any agreement that hamstrings the freedom of the American Congress to continue its upbuilding of the American merchant marine in accord with traditional American policy.

As Senator Copeland, of New York, recently said, when British shipping interests forced this question on the agenda of the London Conference:

"It is laughable to have the British find fault with ship subsidies. If anybody in the world has been generously treated, it is the British shipowner. Every informed person knows how far Great Britain has gone in support of her merchant marine.

"It would be thrillingly welcome to British, intolerable for them to learn that the United States has cast adrift our developing fleets.

"As the British tiger consumed our abandoned commerce, there would be a broad smile on the face of the tiger."

Refusal to pay the war debts they owe to the United States is within the power of the debtor governments of Europe.

But it is not within the power of any foreign government or coalition of governments to deprive the American people of their right to provide and maintain their own merchant marine.

If they lose this right, they will have only the pusillanimity of the American delegation to the London Conference to blame.
